

POST-SCRIPTS

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

"With equal pace, impartial Fate Knocks at the palace, as the cottage gate."

Although yesterday was "Official Spokesman" day at the White House, frenzied search of the morning paper fails to disclose an interview on the all-absorbing topic of the third-term—can it be that out of 300 hustling gentlemen of the press not one remembered to ask him to comment on it? Get the news, boys!

Stanley Baldwin tears off the mask of pacifism and shows John Bull full panopied for war in China.
One wonders if the Lion is a match for a Dragon that has waked up.

The maneuvers of a "liberal" army in Nicaragua mark the appearance of a new word in the nomenclature of Latin-American insurrections. Public opinion nowadays is rather down on revolutions.

Lady desires to learn at The Post's cooking school how to save steps in a large kitchen. Scrub with soap suds and leave the cake of warm on the floor by the sink.

In handing down the opinion that you can't pay dividends out of a deficit, the Delaware Supreme Court will be sustained by the head of every family in America. What this country needs is more judges who know something.

It sure looks as though Mutt and Jeff would have to go to work.

"Oh, philosophers may sing,
Of the troubles of a King;
Yet the duties are delightful and the privileges great."

King George opens Parliament in regal state. As Mr. W. S. Gilbert puts it—
"Of pleasures there are many and of troubles there are none;
And the culminating pleasure
That we treasure beyond measure Is the gratifying feeling that our duty has been done."

The Lords and Ladies gasp when the Prince of Wales trips over his sword, which recalls the remark once made by the crusty Gen. Corbin to a gayly-bedecked militia officer at a White House reception, who relieved the embarrassment of having his saber always getting between his legs by the simple expedient of stepping over it. "Young man," said Corbin, "what is that you are wearing, a hurdle?"

The Hon. Leslie M. Shaw's archaic theory that the death of a President does not advance a Vice President to the Presidency was pretty generally shared up to April 3, 1841, by everybody in the country except John Tyler. It is unusual for the distinguished lawyer to be 86 years behind the times.

Ty Cobb hangs up another world record by signing with Connie Mack at the largest salary ever paid a ball player, and thus do we perceive the truth of the old adage that every knock's a boost.

In asking for a 10 per cent cut in the royal appanage, the King of Denmark shows a deplorable ignorance of the fundamental principles of coolidgeconomy.

Inspector Headley comes back fast—
He laughs the best who laughs the last.

The artistic gentlemen who are trying to save the skyline of Lafayette Square are doubtless descendants of the old fellow who locked the stable door after the theft of the gray mare. At the rate the old landmarks are going, Gen.
Jackson will dig his spurs into his rocking-horse some morning and with a wild whoop dash madly away.

There is considerable consolation in the reflection that the beautification of the Mall triangle with modern government buildings will not be at the expense of many artistic and historic structures, the most important having already disappeared, when Dennis Mullany's gave way to the present Life Saving station.

Another historic old rattletrap went the way of junk when T. R.
in his impetuous way, and without the consent of Congress, ordered the destruction of the dilapidated Sixth street depot, where Garfield was shot. Hancock's oasis, the theater at Eleventh street, the finest in Washington in its day, and Mader's hotel, where, in an humble room fifty years ago died the man who discovered gold in California, are about all in tradition we shall have to mourn when the ancient relics have been torn down. We can spare
'em all.

The Senate committee smacks its lips over the tempting pork barrel opened by the House, and it looks as though Squashville would get a new marble postoffice.

AMERICAN MINISTER DRIVEN FROM POST IN PORTUGAL REVOLT

British Ships Are Sent to Protect the Lives of Subjects There.

SITUATION SERIOUS, U. S. ENVOY REPORTS

Madrid Is Told That President Carmona's Force Has Entered Oporto.

(By the Associated Press.)
The American legation at Lisbon has been repeatedly struck by rifle and machine gun bullets, forcing Minister Fred
M. Dearing to abandon the building, according to a telegram received yesterday by the State Department.
The message described the situation at Lisbon as "very serious," but gave no details of the present status of the Portuguese revolutionary outbreak.
The State Department made public
the following message from Minister Dearing:
"The situation in Lisbon is very serious and will probably continue so for several days.
"The Minister has been obliged to abandon the legation, which was repeatedly struck by rifle and machine gun fire."

Oporto Reported Taken.
London, Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—A Reuter dispatch from Madrid, giving news received there late tonight, reports that President Carmona has occupied Oporto, where a revolutionary garrison held out against the loyal forces since last Thursday. Carmona, is said to have entered Oporto with loyal forces at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

British Sends Warships.
Gibraltar, Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—Three British war vessels have been ordered to proceed to Lisbon and Oporto to protect British interests in Portugal in the event that the revolt now in progress
there should menace them.
The cruiser Comas has been ordered to leave for Lisbon this afternoon, while the destroyers Windsor and Westminster have been ordered to Oporto.

Not only was the Portuguese revolutionary movement still in full swing today in Oporto, where it began last week, but newspaper reports from the capital, Lisbon, were that virtually all the civilian population there was in arms.

Other uncensored dispatches reaching London indicated that the movement, at first confined to an insurgent garrison at Oporto, had assumed serious proportions with the revolutionaries clamoring for restoration of the constitutional rights which they allege were suppressed by President Carmona when he assumed the dictatorship after a military coup last spring.

Armed Camp Found.
Buenos Aires, Feb. 8 (By A. P.).— Lisbon is described as an armed camp and in open revolt against the government of President Carmona, in a dispatch to La Nación from its correspondent in the Portuguese capital dated Monday. He says cries of "Down Carmona!" are heard everywhere.

Woman, 63, Man, 57, Found Dead From Gas

Mrs. Mary Burns, 63 years old, of 2228 Eleventh street northwest, and Benjamin Isaac, 57 years old, were found dead in the front room of the house early today by Mr. Isaac's son, Paul, 19 years old. Police said the gas had not been completely shut off.
Mrs. Burns suffered a nervous breakdown some time ago and recently had been under the impression somebody was seeking to harm her. Her body was reclining on a sofa. Isaac was lying on the floor. They were pronounced dead by Dr. W. A. Maimen, of Emergency hospital.

MAN DROWNS IN POOL; APOPLEXY IS BLAMED

Botkin, Jewish Center Employee, Believed Stricken Walking Near Edge.

The body of Joseph Botkin, 68 years old, 604 1/2 Park road northwest, was found yesterday submerged in 10 feet of water in the swimming pool of the Jewish Community center, 1829 Sixteenth street northwest. Efforts to resuscitate Botkin proved futile and he was pronounced dead at Emergency hospital. He was in charge of the locker rooms at the center.

The body was discovered by Joseph Mason, a fellow worker, who told police the body was submerged in the middle of the pool. The body had apparently been in the water 15 minutes.
Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt ordered an autopsy. Botkin evidently had been walking on the edge of the pool when stricken with apoplexy and fell into the water, Coroner Nevitt said. Only a small amount of water was found in the lungs. He had been employed at the center six months. He is survived by the widow and three children.

700 Shivering Passengers Afloat in Helpless Liner

Crew of President Harding Chop Hatches to Keep Vessel Warm When Leak Depletes Fuel Oil Supply—Towed Into Halifax.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 8 (By A. P.).— Seven hundred passengers who last night shivered in darkness tonight were enjoying the luxury of heat and light as the United States liner steamer President Harding resumed her voyage to New York. The liner was refused here today after a leak in one of the tanks had completely depleted the oil supply.

The departure of the President Harding marked the last leg of what the captain, Stan Beck, called a terrible trip.
The passengers kept up their spirits in the darkness by singing. Prince Louis I. de Bourbon, of Spain, said:
"Last night while we drifted without lights or fire the captain was here, there, everywhere, keeping the passengers happy," he said. "We had no fear, even though our feet were cold."

When several boats headed by the government tug Lady Laurier arrived at the scene last night the President Harding was rising and falling in the trough of the long Atlantic swells, completely helpless. The boat did not have sufficient steam to weight her anchor or to keep the passengers warm in the bitterly cold wind that was sweeping off shore. The hatches and all surplus wooden gear were being chopped up by the crew.
As soon as the liner sighted the little Canadian boat she blew her whistle or attempted to blow her whistle, for the sound from the big brass siren seemed more like the muffled groan of a wounded animal. The Laurier gave an answering signal, and Capt. Sutherland, of the government steamer, immediately prepared to go aboard. As the lifeboat approached the liner, the passengers who were lying the rails gave a great cheer.
When Capt. Sutherland returned he told of the straits the ships were in.
Van Beck, he said, was extremely worried over his boat and passengers, as he was unable to raise sufficient steam to weigh anchor, and all things taken into consideration, the steamer was in a critical way. Her passengers were cold and restless and impatient to get ashore, but this was not their chief worry. It was admitted by the sailors

NICARAGUAN LIBERALS FIGHT FOR CHINANDEGA

Conservatives Held Off From Center of Town, Despite Airplane Attack.

MARINES GUARD RADIO

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 8 (By A.
P.).—Fighting continues in the town of Chinandega, 60 miles from Managua, first occupied by the liberals and then in part by the conservatives. Official advices indicate that groups of liberals managed during the night to entrench themselves in the central part of the city, and with four machine guns in the towers of Calvario church are standing off the conservative reinforcements and the attacking airplanes, which again today flew over the battle zone.

Gen. Parajon remains in command of the liberals and Gen. Viquez commands the conservative forces in the Chinande-ga sector, which is an important strategic position between Corinto and Managua.

Conservative headquarters here is advised that Gen. Diego Vargas, with several hundred men is attacking the liberals on the southeast side of the city. Gen. Gomez has arrived at Que-zaltenango, and has sent forward about 350 men to aid Viquez at Chinandega, which is only seven miles distant.

Compulsory recruiting continues here and the majority of young and able-bodied men are headed for the fighting men were equipped this morning and dispatched in the direction of Chinan-dega by train, but as the tracks are torn up at places, it is expected that they will meet with considerable delay.

The question of most concern for the conservatives at present is the source of ammunition. They are short of shells.

U. S. Fliers Arrive By Boat; Take Train

Mollendo, Peru, Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—
The United States Pan-American aviators arrived here today in launches from Ilo, where they had left their airplanes, and started by rail to La Paz, Bolivia, where they will call on President Siles.

Employees of 4 Banks Get $100,000 Camp

New York, Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—Employees of four of the city's largest financial institutions have been assured a year-round camp and recreation fund through a $100,000 gift of George F.
Baker, banker, the commissioners of the Palladium Interstate park announced today.

The camp, on which construction has begun, will be operated by a employment corporation made up of employees of the First National Bank, the United States Trust Co., the New York Trust Co. and the Bankers Trust Co. It is on Lake Sebago, 35 miles from New York.

PROSECUTOR DENOUNCES DAUGHERTY TO JURY

Former Attorney General Is Unmoved as Buckner Voices Graft Charge.

THREE WITNESSES HEARD

New York, Feb. 8 (By A. P.).— Hunched in a chair, his coat collar turned up about his neck and a hand shading his eyes, Harry M. Daugherty, cabinet member in the Harding administration, today heard United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner tell a federal court jury that the hand he raised as he swore to enforce the law later was extended for graft.

That picture of Daugherty, given pleenly during Buckner's four-hour opening address in the second day of the trial of Daugherty and Thomas W.
Miller, former allied property custodian, brought no visible response from Daugherty. Once, as Buckner orated to the jury, he yawned and now and then he smiled as defense counsel objected to "inflammatory and theatrical speech" of the United States attorney.
Nor did Miller flinch when he was included.

In September, 1926, when Daugherty and Miller were put on trial for the first time, Buckner said he would show the same things. The trial ended in disagreement. The objections to Buckner's opening address were made by Aaron Sapero, counsel for Miller, who did not hear the opening address Buckner made at the first trial.

Buckner dragged an easel before the jury. On it he put graphs and charts, by which he traced the formation of the various branches of the metallurgical business of the Merton family, of Frankfort-am-Main, Germany. Then he showed how, during the war, the United States impounded nearly $7,000, 000 of the assets of the American Metal Company.

1812 War Widow Dies; Oldest U. S. Pensioner

(By the Associated Press.)
Death again has stricken No. 1 from the Federal pension rolls.
Mrs. Mahalia Huff, 108 years old, who died recently near Louisville, Ky., was one of the 17 surviving widows of the war of 1812, and was the oldest pensioner of all.

Texas Legislature Expels Two Members

Austin, Texas, Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—
Representative F. A. Dale, of Bonham, charged with bribe taking, was expelled from the Texas house of representatives late today by a vote of 133 to 4.
Action on the case of Representative
H. H. Moore, jointly charged with Dale, then got under way. Representative Moore was expelled by a vote of 119 to 15.

BALDWIN ASSERTS READINESS TO USE TROOPS IN CHINA

Can Not Negotiate Over Protecting English
Lives, He Says.

MEN ON SCENE ARE TO BE SOLE JUDGES

Northern War Lords Are Said to Be Discussing Peace With Southerner.

London, Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—The British government will persist in its determination to land troops at Shanghai if its representatives there consider that the emergency requires such action.

This declaration was made in the house of commons by Premier Stanley Baldwin today in answer to former Premier Ramsay MacDonald, labor chief and leader of the opposition. Mr. Mac-Donald had opened debate on the king's speech from the throne by charging that the government was "playing with fire" in sending troops to China.

Mr. MacDonald appealed for reopening of the negotiations with the Chinese, after which, he said, the troops now on the way to the Far East could be diverted and not landed anywhere in China.

No Terms on Troops.

Premier Baldwin, who followed the labor chief, said that if the British representatives in Shanghai consider the emergency requires immediate disembarkation of the British troops in Shanghai, then the government will act accordingly. If an emergency does not exist, the leading brigade will be held in readiness in Hongkong, while the rest of the force is approaching.

The premier declined to enter into arrangements with Eugene Chen, the Cantonese foreign minister, or any one else regarding troops dispatched to protect British life.

"Nothing has happened at Hankow," he said, "to induce us to alter our determination to achieve our ends by negotiations."

He added that the British charge d'affaires, Owen O'Malley, was now awaiting a further communication from Chen, and possibly the government would be in a position Thursday to inform the house further.

Reports received here from Peking today said that the cabinet has refused to reply to Great Britain's latest proposals for a settlement of the Chinese situation until Britain replied to the government's protest against sending troops to Shanghai.

Eight destroyers left Sherness, Kent, today to reinforce the British squadron
now in China.

Earl Carroll Asks Writ From Supreme Court

Earl Carroll, through his attorneys, James M. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States, and Herbert
C. Smyth, of New York, and William J.
Hughes, Jr., yesterday asked the United States Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari in a final legal effort to get out of serving a year and a day in prison to which he was sentenced by New York courts as an outgrowth of the notorious bathtub party in his theater in New York.

The writ was asked for on the ground that Carroll's statement that Joyce Hawley was not in the bathtub nude at the party was not material from a legal viewpoint because the question at issue was whether the tub contained intoxicating liquor.

NORBECK IS INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Driver of Senator's Taxi Also Is Hurt in Collision at Union Station.

Senator Peter Norbeck (Republican), of South Dakota, received two fractured ribs and a possible fractured shoulder last night when a taxi in which he was riding was in collision with an automobile in the west driveway of Union station. He was taken to Sibley hospital, where he remained last night.

Olaf Eidem, United States attorney for South Dakota, who was riding with the senator, was not hurt. The taxi driver, William E. Brown, 39 K street northwest, received slight injuries.

Joseph M. Le Monne, 203 East Thorn-apple street, Chevy Chase, Md., who was driving the other car, was arrested by Policeman Leach, of the Sixth precinct station, and held for investigation. The automobile he drove is owned by Mrs.
Sue D. Walker, 3100 Connecticut avenue northwest.

DR. BUTLER'S SPEECH BRINGS 1928 STRIFE OF G.O.P. INTO OPEN

Held Forerunner Here to Showdown on Coolidge and Dry Issue.

UNREST CAUSE SEEN IN NEGLECT OF PARTY

Borah Seeks Debating Tour
With Educator to Sound Prohibition Sentiment.

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler has
"belled" the Republican political cat.
Party leaders were convinced yesterday that the tinkling echoes of the Columbia university president's remarks, in which he predicted that President Coolidge would not be a candidate in 1928, will raise some louder sounds in the near future.

Two developments followed fast on the heels of Dr. Butler's speech:
First—The Republican national machine is in a state of unrest over the neglect which its leaders say has been the only portion served to it from the White House.

Second—The prohibition issue, which the Republicans have been so careful to consider a Democratic prerogative, is injected into the G. O. P. foreground through the prompt acceptance
by Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, of the "wet" challenge which Dr. Butler included in his remarks.

Knowledge of the unexpressed feeling among the actual politicians of the administration machine does much to explain what Dr. Butler said and why he said it.

There are other men of rank in the Republican party who feel the President will not be a candidate for re-election, and who, because they are not talking for quotation, give more of the concrete evidence on which they base their conclusion than the "common sense" which the New York educator advanced as the basis of his convictions.

Looked for Explosion.

These men have been looking "hot"
just some explosion as that caused by Dr. Butler, and which they consider to have "belled the cat," for reports to them from State leaders have indicated the party organization is finding it hard to maintain a working enthusiasm without direction or encouragement from the White House or the national committee.

The story that has been brought to Washington, and not just in one or two instances, is that the Republican organization has disintegrated into a disconnected group of State bodies without contacts or ties to achieve any national purpose.

State chairmen are becoming restive under such conditions, and although they place much of the blame on William M. Butler, chairman of the national committee, they feel he, as the personal representative of the President, must have acted with the advice and consent of the White House in making no use of the national committee as an entity since the Cleveland convention.

Because of these facts and the additional knowledge that more than one Republican is being groomed to inherit the Presidency, if the legacy looks at all likely, several Republican chieftains

Montana Indorses Child Amendment

Helena, Mont., Feb. 8 (By A. P.).— Montana today joined those States which have approved the child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution.

The resolution, introduced by Representative Lucy A. Curran, of Roosevelt county, the only woman member of the assembly, already had passed the house. It was approved today by the senate, 28 to 21.

4,000 Women See Start Of Post's Cooking School

Housewives Listen Eagerly as Mrs. Cross, Expert, Offers Remedies for Kitchen Troubles—Dieting
Will Be Explained Today.

Four thousand housewives, some of them bringing their children and a few their husbands, packed the Washington auditorium yesterday to witness the initial demonstration of The Post's free cooking school, which will continue through Friday.

The great throng exceeded the highest expectations of the sponsors of the school, and insures for the four-day course a tremendous success. And the response was a dependable indication of the number of women who are interested in becoming better cooks.

The great majority of those attending were housewives interested in solving some problem of their kitchens, gathering information as to better methods of preparing food, obtaining new recipes, learning means by which the grocery budget might be reduced

ATHLETICS SIGN COBB; $60,000 TERMS HINTED

Mack Pays Record Salary for Former Detroit Star, Is Report.

OUTBIDS OTHER CLUBS

Philadelphia, Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—Ty Cobb will play baseball with the Philadelphia Athletics this year. The former manager of the Detroit Tigers announced tonight at a dinner of the Philadelphia sports writers that he had accepted the offer of Manager Connie Mack.

Cobb said he would formally sign the Athletics' contract tomorrow. Financial provisions of the contract were not revealed, but unofficially it was reported that the "Georgia Peach" was to receive $60,000 for the 1927 season, the largest salary ever paid a baseball player.

A number of American league teams were anxious to obtain Cobb's services, but Manager Mack apparently outbid them. The St. Louis Browns were said to have offered him $50,000.

Mack and Manager Howley, of the St. Louis Browns, made a special trip to Cobb's home in Augusta, Ga., to lay their offers before him, but the player declined to sign, give either a definite answer until he had considered proposals made by other American league teams.

Cobb said tonight he expected to cover right field for the Athletics and

CITIZEN GROUPS ASK SENATE TO RESTORE ITEM FOR TEACHERS

Lincoln Park and Sixteenth Street Heights Make Plea for District Bill.

ELDRIDGE WANTS VIEWS ON CAR-PERMIT STATUS

Former Association Requests Sidewalks and Four Playgrounds for Section.

Restoration of the item providing for employment of 74 additional teachers, stricken from the District appropriation bill by the House, was asked of the Senate in resolutions adopted by two citizens associations last night. The Lincoln Park association, meeting in the Bryan school, and the Sixteenth Street Heights association, which met in Northminster chapel, asked restoration of the item.

M. O. Eldridge, director of traffic, asked from the Lincoln Park citizens a show of hands as to whether they favored revocation of drivers' permits pending trial on a serious violation of traffic rules. He read a traffic violation record by way of example. Virtually every person in the house signed approval.

Eldridge declared there are now enough cars here to transport the entire population out of the city limits at one time, and that the cars would form a parade from here to Kansas City.

The association requested that new concrete walks be laid in Lincoln park, pointing out that the walks now are deteriorated.

The territory of the association was divided into four sections with the request that a playground be provided each section. The association now has no suitable playground. It was declared, Gullford B. Jameson presided.

Dr. William Fowler, District health officer, outlined the work being done in this city under his supervision before the Sixteenth Street Heights association. He told members of the association that lack of funds hampered the work of his office. Three new members, W. S. Baum, Harry Gardner and H. J. Skinner, were admitted to the association. J. E. Taylor, president of the association, presided.

More Rooms Are Sought For Pupils of Burrville

Crowded school rooms were the basis of vigorous complaints voiced at a meeting of the Northeast Suburban Citizens association last night in Burrville school. Citizens complained of the Burrville third grade operating on part time. The school enrollment, it was stated, is 870, housed in twelve rooms and two portables, an average of more than 50 pupils to a classroom.

A committee was named to request immediate relief of the board of education through an increase of portables and building of an eight-room addition. A letter was directed to be sent to the Senate, asking that Lieut. Col. J. Franklin Bell be retained here as engineer commissioner for a four-year term.

Through J. P. Ramseur was reported $5,000 obtained from Congress for grading of Fifty-seventh and Fifty-fifth streets, and Deane avenue at Fifteenth street, and the extension of sewer and water mains through adjacent territory.

Headley Is Congratulated By Barry Farms Citizens

Inspector Albert J. Headley was congratulated on reassignment to duty by the Barry Farms Citizens association, which met last night in St. John's church. The association reaffirmed its previous endorsement of William McK. Clayton for people's counsel on the public utilities commission.

Matthew M. Taylor was appointed chairman of a committee to confer Monday with the District engineer of highways, C. B. Hunt, relative to improvement of roads in the Barry Farms section, numerous complaints having reached the association concerning "oceans of mud" where streets had been plowed. Elise S. Hoffman presided.

Alleged Erlebacher Thief Held in $10,000

United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday, after a preliminary hearing, held Ulrich Browne, colored, 28 years old, on $10,000 bond on a charge of housebreaking.

Browne was arrested in New York January 27, by police investigating the robbery of Erlebacher's women's wear shop, 1212 F street northwest. In a house he had rented in New York police said apparel bearing the Erlebacher label was found. Browne denied any connection with the robbery of the store.

Workman Is Injured At Eckington Yards

James Bailey, colored, 32 years old, of 231 Third street northeast, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when he fell from a freight car in the Baltimore and Ohio railroad yards at Eckington place and Florida avenue northeast and an automobile on which freight was being loaded.

Bailey was taken to the Casualty hospital and treated for a dislocated left leg and hip and a possible fracture of the ribs.

DEATH SAVES BUS MAN FROM TREE CASE ARREST

Mourning in Family Delays
Warrant for W. R. T.
Shop Foreman.

EXONERATES FIRM HEADS

A death in his family yesterday saved Clarence S. Putnam, foreman of the above of the Washington Rapid Transit Co., from arrest on a charge of mutilating 80 trees on the routes of the bus concern.

Capt. Fred M. Cornwell, of the Tenth precinct, yesterday submitted a report on the tree cutting, to Maj. Edwin B. Heese, superintendent of police. The captain said Putnam shouldered all responsibility for the act and alleged officials of the company had no knowledge of his activity.

The police report said the tree cutting took place late the night of January 25, a double-deck motor bus being used by the gang of laborers under Putnam's direction, who lopped off tree limbs. The headlights of the bus were kept dim until Policeman H. G. Renner saw the vehicle and ordered the lights turned on full. The report stated the policeman did not see the men cut any trees.

Maj. Heese said no warrant would be issued for arrest and prosecution of Putnam at present, due to his home being a scene of mourning. Attaches of the public utilities commission said they would keep a check on expenditure of the bus company to see that Putnam's fines, if any are imposed, are not paid for him by the corporation.

Parent-Teachers' Body Celebrates Birthday

A large cake adorned with 30 candles marked the celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the National Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations in Washington at the meeting of the Joseph R. Keene Parent-Teacher association last night in the Joseph R. Keene school, Chillum Heights.

The meeting was devoted to celebration of Child Welfare day, which commemorates the anniversary of the founding of the national body. Mrs. Herman Hitz lighted the candles. A play was presented by May Maroney, Virginia Ahearn, Ethel Passin, Margaret Strong, Charles Walker, Blaine Brown and Claude Miller, pupils of the Eighth grade. Mrs. M. G. Ray, teacher of the Seventh grade, won the award for the best representative attendance. Mrs. Finis D. Morris, president, presided.

Fourteenth Street Asks Longer Parking Limit

A resolution requesting the extension of the parking limit on upper Fourteenth street northwest from 6 p. m. to 9 p. m. was adopted by the Columbia Heights Business Men's association last night in the Park Road Coffee shop, 1404 Park road northwest.

Plans for a dinner February 24 at the Kenesaw, Sixteenth and Irving streets northwest, were discussed. Advertising and publicity questions were discussed. Three new members were admitted. Frank J. Sobotka, president, presided.

Wealth of Nation Dines As Work Fetes Coolidges

Ford, Firestone, Mellon and Many Others Attend, But Rockefeller, Jr., Lowers Riches Represented at Function by Sending Regrets.

In the beautiful "Hall of the Americas" in the Pan-American Union building there was brought about last night a great get-together of the nation's wealthy and influential citizens.

The occasion was a dinner given by Secretary of the Interior Work in honor of President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Henry Ford, now rated a billionaire, was seated at the banquet table, together with a galaxy of millionaires and near-millionaires. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., had accepted an invitation to attend the dinner, but at the last minute had to send his regrets. Three other millionaires were among those who were unable to attend.

Had all those invited been able to attend the dinner, the combined wealth represented at the banquet table would have been $5,000,000,000. As it was, a large share of the world's wealth was represented.

There is some question as to which is the wealthiest, Mr. Ford or Mr. Rockefeller, but it seems to be agreed that they are the "world's richest men." The third richest man is said by some to be Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon. He was at the dinner last night.

With a few exceptions, President Coolidge was the poorest man present at the dinner given in honor of him and the first lady.

The other outstanding multi-millionaires who gathered in the historic hall to break bread with the President and Mrs. Coolidge were the following:

Harvey S. Firestone, tire manufacturer, of Akron, Ohio; George Eastman, Kodak manufacturer, of Rochester, N. Y.; and Simon Guggenheim, "copper king" of New York.

Messrs. Ford, Firestone, and Guggenheim were accompanied by their wives. America's outstanding steel magnates—Elbert H. Gary and Charles M. Schwab—were at the dinner, but could not attend. Judge Gary was ill and Mr. Schwab is in Europe. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, also was invited, but wired Secretary Work yesterday afternoon that he would be unable to attend. Dr. Butler caused a furore in political circles a few days ago when he predicted that President Coolidge would not seek a third term. Others unable to attend were Cyrus H. K. Curtis, wealthy publisher of Philadelphia; Roy K. Howard, of the Scripps-Howard chain of newspapers, and Will Hays, so-called "Czar of the Movies."

Many millions of dollars were represented by others present at the dinner. They were as follows:

Mrs. Marshall Field, widow of the mercantile magnate of Chicago; Adolph Ochs, publisher of the New York Times; Ogden Mills Reid, publisher of the New York Herald Tribune; Arthur Brisbane, chief editorial writer for the Hearst newspapers; John W. O'Leary, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press; Patrick T. Crowley, president of the New York Central Railroad.

Sir Esmé Howard, British Ambassador; Associate Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, of the United States Supreme Court; Charles E. Hughes, former Governor of Pennsylvania; Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of the army general staff.

Dr. Charles W. Richardson, noted surgeon of this city; Dr. Wendell C. Phillips, famous surgeon of New York; Mrs. Mabel T. Boardman, prominent officer of the National Red Cross, of this city; Josiah H. Pennington, president of the University of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Henry F. Dimmock, of this city; Mrs. N. S. Waipole, of Pueblo, Colo.; and Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union.

The hostess at the dinner was the daughter of Secretary Work, Mrs. A. W. Bissell, of Evanston, Ill.

Disagreeing Juries Cited
by Miss Amdur.

Hard Luck boarded the train with Miss Sarah Amdur when she gave up her 45-a-week job in New York to come to the city for a paying job, and to judge from the story told in the Court of Appeals yesterday, it has been her own bad luck.

Among the misfortunes Miss Amdur listed in court were these: She was run down by the automobile of Eugene Jacobson, Attorney James A. O'Shea, Miss Amdur yesterday filed a new suit for $50,000 damages against Jacobson, who is represented by Attorney Craighill and Tebbe. The court took the case under advisement.

TRAFFIC-JAM REMEDY URGED BY PARK GROUP

Asks the Closing of Part of South Carolina Avenue
in Southeast.

Following a request of the Southeast Washington Business Men's association to relieve congested traffic conditions at Eighth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast, the coordinating committee of the National Capital park and planning commission recommended to the District commissioners yesterday that South Carolina avenue be closed between Seventh and Ninth streets southeast.

The recommended plan in detail would reroute South Carolina avenue traffic around parked reservations on either side of Pennsylvania avenue instead of through them, but Pennsylvania avenue and Eighth street traffic would continue to traverse the reservations. A delegation from the business men's association attended the meeting.

Projected widening and extension of B street through to the Capitol to form a boulevard from the Capitol to Arlington Memorial bridge was discussed but no definite action taken. Committee members said their recommendation on this project would be ready for presentation at the meeting of the park and planning commission February 18.

Bus Rider Asks Damages.

The Washington Rapid Transit Co. was sued yesterday in circuit court for $5,000 damages for alleged personal injuries by Charles J. Seymour, Lenox building. Through Attorneys Kline and Luce, the plaintiff says that because of the alleged negligent handling of a bus on which he was riding on Pennsylvania avenue northwest, on June 18, 1926, he was struck by the overhanging limbs of a tree. Seymour was riding on the top deck, he stated, when the bus veered toward the curb, between Ninth and Tenth streets.

CAB DRIVER SLASHED; 80 STITCHES ON CUTS

Attacked by Man and Woman Near Bradbury Heights,
He Says.

Three surgeons of Casualty hospital worked in relays last night sewing up razor gashes in the throat, chest, arms and face of George P. Harley, 21-year-old colored taxicab driver. It required 80 stitches to close the wounds through which the chauffeur was bleeding to death.

According to the story told police by Harley, he was engaged by a white man and woman at Fourth and B streets southeast, and directed to drive them to Bradbury Heights, Md. A half mile from the Maryland line he was told to stop, and while aiding with two heavy suitcases was struck from behind with a club. He did not see who struck him, Harley said, but the man passenger threatened him with a razor. When he fell he was kicked aside and the attackers fled with his cab.

Edward Sampson, of Bradbury Heights, found Harley by the roadside and took him to Casualty hospital, where Dr. Magruder, MacDonald, Dr. William Hollister and Dr. Anthony Sindoni, worked in relays to sew up the wounds. Police of the Eleventh precinct and Headquarters Detective Patrick O'Brien began a search for the man and woman.

Victor Lumsden, secretary, and Otto Bauer, treasurer. The following members of the board of directors were named: G. E. Anderson, Mrs. L. H. Fowler, V. E. Grottsch, Joseph J. Lane, of New York, and O. H. Schroeder, of Minnesota.

Plans for an annual flower show to be held June 1 and 2 were made. The Washington hotel was selected as the headquarters and competition will be nationwide. David Lumsden was named chairman of the show committee.

Parent-Teacher Group Assails Late Parties

The Parent-Teacher association of the Jackson school yesterday adopted a resolution condemning late parties for children. The resolution insisted that all parties begin not later than 8:30 p. m. and terminate by midnight. Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, deplored the "frustration" attitude of parents that their children will acquire a good moral code. Parents should make a consistent effort to teach their children correct conduct, he stated.

Plans were inaugurated for the celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the District Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations next Tuesday. The anniversary is February 17. Mrs. L. P. Shippen, president, presided.

EFFECT OF FORD'S NAME ON VALUATION OF STOCK RELATED

E. R. Tinker Declares Elimination of Factor Would Not Influence Price.

SUGGESTED GOLD MINE TO PUBLIC, CRANE SAYS

Gladly Would Have Paid $10,000 a Share in 1913, He Testifies.

(By the Associated Press.) Varying estimates of the effect of Henry Ford's personality on the value of his company's stock on March 1, 1913, were submitted by witnesses for appellants at yesterday's hearing in the government's suit for a revision of the stock value appraisal made by the Treasury Department in 1919, when nine minority holders sold out to Ford. Edward R. Tinker, former vice president of the Chase National Bank of New York, expressed the belief that elimination of Ford from further participation in the enterprise would not have materially influenced the then or future value of the stock. Placing the value at between $10,000 and $12,500 a share, as of March 1, 1913, Tinker said that the personnel with which Ford had surrounded himself and the impracticable position of the company at that time, suggested all the elements of stability needed to insure further expansion.

Paul M. Clay, economic statistician for Moody's Investors' Service, in reply to a question put by Ernest H. Van Foss, one of the three members of the board of tax appeals who are receiving the evidence, said that his previous estimate of $10,200 a share was predicated on the assumption that Ford would continue indefinitely at the head of the plant.

Name Suggests Gold Mine.

Ford, out of the picture March 1, 1913, would have suggested a situation that might have warranted a downward revision of his valuation, he said. Ralph T. Crane, of Brown Bros. & Co., investment bankers, New York, testified that Ford's name "suggested a gold mine to the public in 1913 and it would gladly have paid $10,000 a share for the stock."

Crane gave $9,500 as a minimum value for the stock, adding that the management of the Ford Motor Co., its capital strength, earning performance and the labor situation in its plant, made it the outstanding factor in the motor industry.

President Coolidge transmitted request for authorization of expenditure of $1,000,000 for payment of claims of China growing out of neglect and unlawful acts of persons connected with chief deputy, who have been subpoenaed on petition of appellants, will testify this afternoon. Their testimony, counsel said, is required to explain the government's reasons for reopening the case after the Treasury Department, in 1919, had fixed a valuation of $9,489 a share as of March 1, 1913, when the minority holders sold out to Ford. The government now seeks to repudiate that appraisal and is seeking to rescind appellants for back taxes on the basis of its revised stock evaluation of $3,547.

President Coolidge (Republican), of Indiana, introduced resolution that would require every bidder on government construction projects to use only materials obtained in this country.

BYRD TO ATTEMPT NEW YORK-TO-PARIS HOP, REPORT HERE

Bennett, Who Went on Flight to Pole, Is Expected to Accompany Him.

$25,000 ORTEIG PRIZE AWAITS OCEAN VICTOR

Believe Aviator Will Use Plane Like That Which Conquered North.

Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd, hero of the first flight to the north pole by airplane, will attempt a flight from New York to Paris in an effort to carry off the $25,000 prize offered by Raymond Orteig of New York for the first nonstop flight between the two cities, according to information obtained in well informed circles here yesterday.

Floyd Bennett, aviator machinist, who accompanied Commander Byrd on his historic flight to the pole, again is expected to be his partner.

It is understood Commander Byrd plans to use a Fokker plane of the same type as the one in which he reached the north pole last May. Although there will be some modifications and improvements in the new machine, Commander Byrd is believed to have the financial backing of at least one influential party in his projected undertaking. No direct confirmation of these plans could be obtained, however, yesterday, in the absence of Commander Byrd from the city.

Bennett Granted Leave.

It was learned at the Navy Department that Floyd Bennett, who is expected to accompany Byrd in the attempted flight, applied to the Navy Department about ten days ago for a leave of absence of six months and that this had been granted by the department.

It was stated, however, that Bennett had made no announcement of his purpose in applying for leave.

Forer Adams, president of the National Aeronautic association, stated yesterday that he had received no official advice that Commander Byrd would compete for the Orteig prize, formal notice of which is required to be filed with the association "at least 60 days" before the flight. It is not believed, however, that Commander Byrd would attempt the flight before spring, when weather conditions would be more favorable.

Mr. Adams believes, however, that if Commander Byrd should attempt the flight in a Fokker plane of the type used by him on his polar flight that "the enterprise would stand an extraordinarily good chance of success."

Coolidge Withdraws Tilton Nomination

(By the Associated Press.) President Coolidge yesterday withdrew the nomination of William J. Tilton to be United States district judge in the middle district of Georgia. Tilton, now serving under a recess appointment, is a brother of Representative Tilton, of Connecticut, the Republican House floor leader. Grounds on which Tilton was opposed included the claim that he was not a resident of the district over which he presided.

ADDITION TO BUILDING PROGRAM ACCEPTED

Treasury to Seek Funds for Triangle Land at the Present Session.

Quick work was made yesterday by the Senate public buildings and grounds committee on the bill authorizing acquisition of all property in the Mall triangle not already owned by the government. The committee readily concurred in the amendment to the bill by the House increasing the general public building program by $100,000,000, and Senator Watson, of Indiana, reported it to the Senate. He plans to call it up at the first possible moment and ask for concurrence without submission of the bill to conference.

In the meantime, the Treasury made known that it will seek funds for the Mall triangle at this session. An appropriation of $35,000,000 is authorized in the bill, but estimates will be prepared only for those properties which it is believed can be acquired through purchase or condemnation in the next fiscal year.

Conferences will be held soon between the budget, Treasury and building commission officials with regard to control of operation and maintenance of the new Federal buildings now planned under the bill passed at the last session. There is a question whether the Treasury Department or the office of public buildings and parks will have this control.

PROCTOR DEFENDS SELF BEFORE JURY IN BUSCH MURDER

Wounded by First Shot Fired in Gun Battle, Youth Declares.

MRS. POPE, 20, DENIES SEEING McCABE IN HOME

Mareno's Counsel Is Accused of Aiding Latter in Cross-Examination.

John Cline Proctor, 18 years old, ascended the witness stand in criminal court No. 2 yesterday and defended himself on the charge of participation in the death of Patrolman Leo W. K. Busch. He denied having been armed and declared he was wounded by the first shot fired in the Grant circle gun battle September 26, last, when Busch was wounded fatally. He died two days later.

Proctor is the youngest of the accused quartet, which includes John Paul McCabe, Samuel Mareno and Nicholas Lee Eagles. The day marked the opening of the defense case, and Proctor was the first witness. He will be recalled to the stand today for cross-examination by both defense and government counsel.

Attired in a light gray suit, his dark hair slicked tightly to his head and his face possessing a "prison pallor," Proctor told his expected story in a clear voice, tainted with a "Dixie twang." His story lent aid to the defense of McCabe.

Proctor testified he had a "dance date" and no money on the night of September 25, and went to the home of Eagles, whom he claimed as a brother-in-law, at 219 C street northwest, to borrow money. There he received a revolver from James Callan and sold it to a fellow called "Big Boy" at 614th and the avenue for $5. Appropriating half of the money he fulfilled his engagement and was en route to the Eagles home to return Callan's money, when he was hailed by "a man named Ross" at Ninth and D streets northwest and introduced to McCabe.

Intoxicated in Auto.

He and McCabe purchased liquor, and when they returned to Eagle's home, Proctor said, McCabe was left in the rear seat of the car, intoxicated. "I took a ride, so the four of us got into the car and drove over into Virginia," he said. "Near Alexandria, the witness said, a police patrol was sighted and Eagles declared, 'Don't let them cope with us with these guns or we're done for.' Proctor declared it was the first time he knew any guns were in the car.

Returning to the city, more liquor was purchased, Proctor said, and they drove onto the Baltimore pike. He related the two holdups committed on the road but denied he or McCabe participated in the robberies. The automobile became disabled near the Soldiers' Home, upon the return to this city, and Policemen Busch and Frank L. Ach approached them at Georgia avenue and Uppur street, where they were waiting for a cab, he said.

"One of the fellows up front fired," Proctor said in describing the battle, after stating Eagles and Mareno walked in advance of himself and McCabe. "I fell on the pavement. The fellow stepped out front and said 'Stick 'em up or I'll drop you,' and then fired." Proctor said he crawled between a hedge, walked through an arroyo, stole an automobile, drove to where his own car was parked and switching cars, drove home. He then was taken to Baltimore by his brother, he said.

James B. Archer, Proctor's counsel, admonished his client for referring to the highway robberies as "stickups," and thereafter Proctor termed the incidents "holdups." Martin O'Donoghue sternly cross-examined the young witness, but did little to change his story.

Archer Makes Statement.

Prior to Proctor's ascent to the stand, Archer delivered his opening statement. He related the same story as told by his client and insisted upon other defense counsel making opening statements. When his motion was denied by Justice William Hitz, Archer turned to his client and commanded, "Take the stand."

O'Donoghue, in cross-examination, sought to have Proctor admit participating in the series of robberies and holdups, committed a week before the gun battle. Proctor denied this and the identification given by John J. Twigg of the youth as one of the bandits. Proctor admitted, however, that he introduced Mareno to Eagles, and said he had known both several months before the gun fight.

Archer and O'Donoghue engaged in a heated debate when Proctor's defense hurriedly cross-examined O'Donoghue that he "was not doing a thing but siding McCabe by his cross-examination, even though he says he is Mareno's counsel."

Mrs. Pope on Stand.

Court was delayed more than an hour at the outset when a marshal was dispatched to bring Mrs. Gladys Pope, 20 years old, the "surprise" government witness, to court. So weakened as the result of recent illness, which has kept her from court, Mrs. Pope had to be assisted to the witness stand.

After being asked two questions by James A. O'Shea, attorney for McCabe, she denied seeing Proctor or McCabe if she looked from the window at the C street address where McCabe was seated in the car, and whether she saw McCab in the house. Both answers were "No."

Motions to instruct the jury to find a verdict of not guilty due to lack of evidence in the case were denied, and the entire array of defense counsel were denied by Justice Hitz before the defense opened its case.

PROSECUTOR SCORES DAUGHERTY TO JURY

Co., a Merton establishment, 45 per cent German owned. In 1921, he related, Richard Merton, chief government witness, came to the United States to procure release of the impounded American Metal assets, claiming they were wrongfully seized because they were pledged as guaranty to stockholders of the Societe Suisse Pour Valeurs de Metaux, another Merton establishment in Switzerland.

Merton, Buckner alleged, met John T. King, one-time Republican national committeeman from Connecticut, who introduced him to Jess W. Smith, Daugherty's handy man. King and Smith were indicted, but both are dead. By the influence of King and Smith and by arrangement with Miller and Daugherty, Buckner said he would show, by inference, the Merton claim as a defense against Daugherty's Miller. Smith and King were paid $441,000.

Three witnesses testified during the afternoon session. Vera V. Veal, assistant secretary of the National Bank of Washington Court House, Ohio, of which Daugherty's brother, Mal S. Daugherty, is president, told of four $10,000 Liberty bonds, bearing serial numbers of bonds Merton gave King for his aid in having the Merton claim passed, being received at the bank. They were received in November, 1923, two years after Merton gave them to King. They were sold, she said, to Otis & Co., of Cleveland.

The sale of the bonds brought $39,335. This she said, was credited to the bank. But on the same day this sum was received—November 19, 1923—certificate of deposit for a similar sum was issued to Mal S. Daugherty. This was taken up December 21, 1923, and on the same day nine certificates of deposit amounting to $49,335 were issued to Harry M. Daugherty.

Buckner then brought out by questioning Miss Veal that on December 31, 1923, Mal Daugherty had a balance of only $35,271.36 and that the proceeds of the bonds had to be used to issue a certificate of deposit for $49,335. The $49,335 included $10,000 that was not accounted for when court adjourned.

Clarence Daugherty, office manager of Goldman, Sachs & Co., banking and brokerage house, testified that in October, 1921, two days after Miller handed Merton checks totaling $6,453,977.97, King, whom he knew for fifteen years, came into the office with Merton. While they were there, he said, Merton was given $391,000 in Liberty bonds. A receipt bearing the serial numbers of these bonds was identified by Daugherty and a clerk.

20 SOUTHEASTERN LINES RAISE WAGES $3,300,000

Southern Railway Alone Is Excepted From Grant to 22,000 Employees.

ENDS STRIKE POSSIBILITY

(By the Associated Press.)

An agreement between Southeastern railroads and labor organizations representing their train service employees granting a 7½ per cent wage increase, effective February 1, was announced yesterday by the Federal board of mediation. The settlement eliminated any possibility of a strike of brakemen and conductors and concluded negotiations which have been in progress here for a month.

Twenty trunk line railroads in the Southeastern territory, including all the principal systems except the Southern railway, and 22,000 of their employees are covered by the agreement. The wage increase granted is identical in amount to that which was received by train service employees of Eastern railroads.

The Order of Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen asked the Southeastern railroads last fall for a considerably larger increase than the 7½ per cent obtained yesterday, and after negotiations had been broken off a strike vote was taken. The mediation board, however, asked both the railroads and the brotherhoods to renew discussions, the request was granted and the strike vote was disregarded.

In railroad circles it is now expected that a demand for wage increases will be proffered in behalf of the engineers and firemen, and if so committees representing these organizations and the managements are again likely to be called into negotiations.

The railroads calculate that the wage payments to the 22,000 men given an increase yesterday will amount to $3,300,000 a year above those which now are made.

Hugh S. Gibson, now American Minister to Switzerland, has been selected for appointment as Ambassador to Belgium, relieving William Phillips, who is to be the first American Minister to Canada.

Mr. Gibson is now in Washington working on the report of the American delegation to the preliminary arms conference at Geneva, of which he was the head. He will return to Geneva to continue his duties as American delegate when the preliminary conference reconvenes at Geneva in March.

The new Ambassador will be on familiar ground when he returns to Belgium, as he was secretary of the American mission to that country in 1914 and served there during the German drive through Belgium. He also has served as Minister to Poland. He is a native of Los Angeles, Calif.

House Committee Shelves Kiess Bill

The Kiess Philippine auditor bill was shelved yesterday in the House in committee. Chairman Kiess, author of the measure, said he thought it advisable to let the bill remain in the committee for the time being. It would redefine the powers of the Philippine auditor and make other changes in the administration of Philippine finances. A bill to confirm an act of Philippine legislature to legalize its authority to collect taxes was approved unanimously.

WRIT AGAINST CIVIL SERVICE BOARD ASKED

Stowell's Victory Would Partly Strip President of Power to Regulate Group.

An appeal case which, if won by the party bringing it to the Court of Appeals, will serve to strip the President of some of his powers to make regulations concerning the activities of the civil service commission was argued yesterday when Dr. Ellery C. Stowell, of the Better Government league, presented his demand for a writ of mandamus against the commission.

Dr. Stowell seeks to inspect the records of the commission containing the names of temporary employees of the government. He failed to obtain the writ in the lower court when Assistant District Attorney Leo A. Rover contended the commission was but an advisory board to the President and subject only to his commands. Dr. Stowell claimed the right to inspect these records as a citizen and a taxpayer and also on the ground that the records were public records and could not be withheld lawfully from a citizen who wanted to inspect them. The commission contended before the appellate court that not only was it subject solely to the President's orders, but that it could not conveniently allow Dr. Stowell to inspect the files because of the trouble and annoyance involved.

Moreover, Mr. Rover argued, the records desired by Dr. Stowell contain confidential information which, in justice to the employees, should not be disclosed except under an emergency grave enough to warrant an inspection by a person not connected with the Federal government. The appellate court took the case under advisement.

FUEL OIL SHORTAGE HALTS LINER'S TRIP

on board the Laurier that if a strong southwest gale arose the boat would be in a bad way, as she was close on shore.

The two commanders decided that the most feasible plan was to await the consignment of oil. The fuel tug arrived just at dusk, and almost immediately new difficulties were experienced, for the only side of the liner that the fuel could be loaded on was the weather side and, with an adverse tide, it was almost impossible for the lighter to be alongside without smashing to pieces against the big bulk of the American craft.

To make a lee for the small boat, Capt. Sutherland took the Laurier practically under the stern of the liner. The little Laurier was tossed about like an egg shell, waiting for the American to drop a line. The first three lines went into the water instead of onto the Laurier, but one was finally secured and a cable was taken aboard. Then the Laurier pulled the great liner to weather, making a lee for the tug with the oil. This maneuver of the Laurier's captain proved successful, and in a few minutes the oil was being loaded. Once more the passengers gave a great cheer.

Hardly had the move been accomplished, when, at dusk, the tug Coalopolis, came smashing through the white caps. The Coalopolis then put a line on the Lady Laurier, holding her bow up to the wind. At 9 o'clock, the captain of the Laurier again put off in a small boat to the Harding and conferred with Capt. Van Beek, and it was decided to leave the tug until daylight, this morning. The liner was then in better condition as sufficient oil had been loaded to get up enough steam to work the ship's dynamos full force.

In the early morning, a line was run to the Harding from the Laurier and a stern line given to the Coalopolis to steer by, and the procession started for Halifax, the American ship having enough power to use one of her engines at top speed. Halifax was reached without mishap about 2 o'clock.

Why Six-Cylinder Hauling Costs Less

There's a vast difference in the day's accomplishment with a six-cylinder Speed Wagon. Weaving through city traffic or streaking away at the law's limit from town to town—the added nimbleness of two extra cylinders crowds more work into the day's routine.

Comparative cost records will disclose a startling fact—a close parallel of operating cost between the four-cylinder unit and the six-cylinder Speed Wagon. Yet an overwhelming advantage of power and flexibility is ready at instant call for hard going and for smoothing steep grades.

The enduring quality built into every Speed Wagon accounts for unfailing service with but little time for attention. And it means healthy old age with a reserve of unused miles—years beyond the life of the average truck.

THE McNARY-HAUGEN BILL.

The Senate has agreed to vote on the McNary-Haugen bill on Friday afternoon.

That is the opportunity for independent and conscientious senators to strike down one of the most vicious proposals ever laid before Congress.

Senators can help to restore the confidence of the people in the Senate by voting down this class legislation.

Some senators are at heart opposed to this bill but are inclined to vote for it through fear of the "agricultural vote." Others do not understand the bill and may vote for it because of the insistence of its sponsors and their statement that Mr. Coolidge now favors it.

There is no reason why any senator should be afraid of the farm vote. The majority of farmers are opposed to the McNary-Haugen bill. They are learning that it is the invention of politicians who are trying to "farm the farmers."

No senator should be misled into thinking that President Coolidge favors the McNary-Haugen bill. He does not. If passed, he will veto it. But Congress should not act the coward by passing the bill and then looking to the President to do his duty.

The opposition to this bill is not based upon antagonism to the farmers. No one wishes to see agriculture suffer. The amount carried by the bill, $250,000,000, is but a fraction of what the nation would gladly vote for farm relief if the people could be sure that the money would be devoted to actual farm relief and accomplish the purpose desired.

It is because the McNary-Haugen bill sets up a bureaucracy in Washington to boost the cost of living for all the benefit of the few, that it is opposed.

The McNary-Haugen bill, if enacted, would not be merely a temporary evil. It would be a burning sore, arraying one class of Americans against another class, and stirring up hate and reprisals. It would tend to transform this government by placing it upon the false foundation of class favoritism instead of a square deal for all. Two kinds of Americans would be created by this bill, one kind paying tribute to the other.

Absolute control of the people's bread would be placed in the hands of a bureau in Washington, to manipulate as the bureau saw fit. This bureau would not be the government, but a supergovernment, not amenable to the President or Congress. It could gamble in wheat, corn, hogs, cotton, tobacco, and any other crop which it might declare to be "staple."

In its essence and spirit the bill violates the Constitution. But it would be poor work on the part of senators who doubt its constitutionality to vote for it and go through the long and costly process of having it nullified by the courts. Why subject the people to this irritating, unjust and expensive experiment?

Senators who have the interest of the United States at heart, including the interest of agriculture, will not sacrifice their self-respect and independence by voting for this bill merely to curry favor with the mythical "farm vote."

The politicians who have banded together to jam this bill through Congress have no regard for the public welfare. The public welfare rests in the hands of Congress. It is for senators to stand between the people and these marauders.

BOULEVARD TRAFFIC.

Early in January the Court of Appeals upheld the right of the traffic director to bar solid-tired trucks from Sixteenth and other specified streets. At that time two similar cases involving the right of the director to bar horse-drawn vehicles from certain streets were pending. The police court previously had dismissed the charges, from which decision the District had noted an appeal to the higher court. The District now has been sustained by a two to one vote of the three appellate judges. Thus the right of the traffic director to bar slow-moving vehicles of every description from arterial highways has been established.

Both rulings may be hailed with the greatest satisfaction. Boulevard streets are designated so that a large number of automobiles may be moved from the congested areas to and from the residential sections at high speed. Any class of vehicles which tends to hinder or entangle this high speed traffic defeats the purpose for which the arteries are established. Since boulevards are in most cases paralleled by other streets upon which no prohibition is in effect, no hardship is imposed upon the slower class of traffic.

The status of all types of vehicles on these disputed streets is now clearly established by law. Fast-moving vehicles have gained the right to traffic arteries. Solid-tired trucks and horse-drawn vehicles must use other highways.

DR. BUTLER'S BIG DAY'S WORK.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler did a big day's work when he eliminated President Coolidge from the presidential race of 1928 and arranged matters so that the Republican candidate should be an out-and-out wet.

That was enough for one day. If another day should develop the fact that the most conspicuous, available, desirable Republican candidate in the country is Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler—well, that will be another day.

Dr. Butler does not announce his candidacy, but by all the rules of common sense it would be necessary to eliminate Mr. Coolidge first if Dr. Butler should be inclined to take the place. Dr. Butler is not lacking in common sense.

The universal opinion of New York city is that no dry need apply for the Presidency. Dr. Butler is convinced that without New York no one can become President. And since New York is wet, it follows, as night follows the day, according to the rule of common sense, that no Republican who is a prohibitionist can hope to become President.

It happens that Dr. Butler is a wet. In this stand he is supported by the entire city of New York. Having New York, all that he needs is the rest of the United States. This may seem to be a large need, but it must not be forgotten that the rest of the United States needs New York in order to elect a President. What is more logical, then, than a combination between New York and the rest of the United States? Combination, and not competition, is the order of the day. Look at the railroad consolidations.

Senator Borah has assured Dr. Butler that he will assist him in thrusting the prohibition issue into the next Republican national convention. Senator Borah is a dry. By pushing and pulling, these gladiators ought to succeed in making the prohibition issue prominent, especially when it is evident that the issue will do a little shoving on its own account. It will be in the convention before these distinguished publicists arrive, and whatever their own fortunes may be, it will emerge from the convention as big or bigger than it is now. No one need worry over the ability of the prohibition issue to get a front seat in any convention in 1928.

If Dr. Butler could only eliminate the Volstead act as easily as he has eliminated President Coolidge, he would not need to fear Senator Borah or anybody else.

A FIREARMS LAW.

The national crime committee has drafted a model bill providing for the regulation of firearms. Copies of it will be forwarded to all the States in the hope that it will be of service to the legislatures in framing effective regulatory measures. Briefly, the draft provides that criminals shall be forbidden to purchase or possess firearms; that retail dealers must be licensed and must keep a record of all sales; that permits must be obtained for purchasing or carrying pistols or revolvers; that purchase of machine guns by civilians or possession thereof by any save police authorities shall be prohibited; that manufacturers, jobbers and wholesale dealers in firearms must be registered; that pawnbrokers shall be forbidden to lend money on firearms; that the use of silencers of any sort be made unlawful; that indiscriminate advertising of revolvers and pistols be restricted; and that the use of bombs containing gases be made punishable by heavy penalties.

Examination of the model bill leads one to believe that it would constitute an effective check. Unquestionably it would offer many problems in enforcement, which, however, is to be expected in any legislation of this sort. In making it mandatory that record be kept of all purchasers or owners of firearms, however, it would remove the greatest evil of all, that of the anonymous pistol user, and should make it much easier than at present for police authorities to run down the ownership of any firearm involved in a crime.

Only a few days ago Congress barred the mails to distributors of pistols and revolvers. This is as far as the government can go. Any additional steps toward the control of firearms must be taken by States and municipalities, for the guidance of which the model law should be of great value. No effort should be spared toward hastening its enactment into law in as many States as possible.

REAL ESTATE VALUES IN NEW YORK.

The perennial controversy between assessors and owner of lands in the city of New York has broken out again. Under the law as laid down in the charter of Greater New York the tax commissioners are required to determine the value of real estate on October 1 of each year. The commissioners have determined that real estate in the greater city is worth $1,400,000,000 more than it was on October 1, 1925. But this great valuation is not likely to stand without appeals to the courts by owners who insist that while their land may have increased in value, the improvements have lost value from various causes, and that their assessments should be correspondingly decreased.

Examples of the rapid depreciation in value of "modern" buildings on Manhattan island are brought out constantly. The Clark mansion opposite Central park, which was sold last week, including the lot on which it stood, for less than half the cost of the building, is a case in point. In 1911 Senator Clark contested the valuation placed upon it by the tax commissioners on the ground that while the figure represented its worth to him, no one else would pay the price, and his contention was upheld. The lot today will be worth far more than it is as soon as the building is wrecked and removed.

The most notable example of the advance in real estate values after the removal of the buildings was shown in the case of the Brooklyn Academy of Music which was destroyed by fire a few years ago. While the building was burning the value of the shares in the theater climbed with the ascending of the flames, and reached the high point when it became certain that the building would be totally destroyed, so that the site would be available for a new structure.

The growth in values of all land on the island between the Hudson and the East river has been greater than ever dreamed of in the "boom" in any one of the hundred or more of such boosting operations throughout the country. If the original owners of the island are able to look down from their present location in the "happy hunting grounds" they must sigh deeply as they think of what they missed in the way of wampum when they swapped the entire island off to those thrifty Dutchmen for a handful of beads.

CURTAINED COLLEGE ENROLLMENT.

The policy of limiting strictly the enrollment of students in colleges and universities, as now adopted by many of the leading educational institutions of this country, has provoked much discussion, some of it antagonistic, some favorable.

Those who take the attitude of opposition maintain that every youth who desires it should have the opportunity of receiving a training in the higher learning, not only for the student's own benefit, but also to the end that the community may hereafter be better served, and that to diminish the number of intending students, by picking and choosing among the applicants for admission, is unworthy of a republic, in which all are supposedly equal, because such a procedure tends to create an academic aristocracy.

On the other hand, those who approve of the new system of selection argue that the movement is intended to prevent any lowering of the standards of scholarship; to secure, to some extent at least, individual instruction and attention for each student, which can not be provided when the classes are unwieldy in size; and to turn out a finished product, distinguished for quality rather than quantity and thus more likely to prove of exceptional benefit to the nation at large. The advocates of restriction in admissions buttress themselves further on the theory which, as they claim, long experience has proved to be correct, that not every one is equipped by nature to derive profit from a university education, and that it is better to reject the unfit at the outset than to discard them as "misfits" at a later stage.

It was the rush for education following the war that brought about the idea of the limitation of the number of students and the consequent divergence of opinion between the two opposing schools of thought on the subject. In the prewar years there was keen competition among colleges for students, and every one who came, approximately, up to their published requirements was accepted—with "conditions," when that proviso seemed absolutely necessary to save the face of the institution. The reaction that has now set in, and which seems likely to develop into a settled and ever widening practice, will, it is to be hoped, have the anticipated results. It is at least founded on reason and common sense. At the same time, it is a consolation for the youth who fall of admission to college to know that in a country like this, prosperous, go-ahead, teeming with energy, and with wondrous powers of absorption, there are open to them many careers of usefulness, for the entering of which the production of a college diploma is by no means necessary.

UNENFORCEABLE LAWS.

Sociologists, as well as others who have no claim to so dignified a title, have often remarked that there is in human nature some kink that causes it to resent, resist, and violate any law which tends to restrain or curb personal liberty in matters of taste, sport, or other enjoyment which, before the enactment of the law, were perfectly permissible and were pursued without let or hindrance. On that principle, there are many men and women who violate the Volstead act freely and even with alacrity, though not always with impunity. Similarly, sumptuary laws regulating dress and personal adornment, though often supported by thundering fulminations from princes and potentates, have generally failed to produce the intended effect. Were an act passed tomorrow forbidding the use of cosmetics, it would certainly arouse a storm of protest and, equally certainly, would be practically unenforceable—and that, too, though some of the facial and other preparations now on the market are so decidedly harmful that they eminently deserve to be banned.

A case in point is the betting tax, recently put in force in Great Britain. A statement just issued by the Turf Guardian society, which appears to be an organization for the protection of duly licensed bookmakers who endeavor to carry on their transactions on legal lines, shows from the books of members of the society that the volume of lawful betting is not more than about one-fourth of the turnover for the corresponding period of the previous year. As betting, however, is carried on in as full blast as ever, the obvious inference is that the bulk of it has been diverted into secret and illegitimate channels for the sole purpose of evading the tax. The tax, indeed, is unpopular and, in a way, oppressive, and to dodge it, on the ground that it is both detestable and impracticable, gives an extra spice of adventure to many backers. It has been noticed, also, that laxity in this matter has produced an undeniable moral retrogression in the greatly lessened respect shown by many sportsmen for the law of the land.

The writer of old, who said that you may drive out nature with a pitchfork, yet it will always return, seems to have been a fairly wise man in his gafferation.

You'll notice that a woman never faints if only women are near.

Among the aids to virtue are good blood, religion and old age.

The two opposition parties in the United States are the Democratic party and Borah.

Might isn't right; but small countries must remember that smallness is no alibi.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Kensington Tragedy.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: You have rendered an important public service by devoting so much news and editorial space to the recent tragedy at the Kensington railroad crossing. The ultimate responsibility must rest upon the driver of any car which is placed in the path of a moving railway train, no matter what share should be placed upon the railway company for insufficient warning, or upon the community for permitting the existence of a trap into which any driver possessing feeble human judgment may fall. Too often such tragedies result from the excitement of a race to "beat a fast train," as was assumed the case at Kensington by the writer of the editorial in Saturday's Post, as well as by many reporters covering the incident. By placing the emphasis on the dangers of that practice, the most valuable lesson to be learned from this catastrophe has been missed. Readers of The Post, are, for the most part, careful men and women who may well say that, as they never race, the lesson is not for them. What are the facts in the case? Had this community been asked to choose a driver for steadiness, ability and reputation for carefulness, a safer man than Paul Trowbley or one against whom a charge of recklessness would with less reason be laid, could not have been found. No reader of this paper would have been a safe risk on a hazard of this kind. There must then be something in the conditions existing at that place and time which misled a usually careful man.

The fated car entered Kensington from the east, coming up a steep hill, and making a sharp turn to the left, before proceeding a short block, about 100 feet, to the railway tracks. This short block and the roadside before the turn is made is built solidly to the under platform by the tracks, so that vision is obscured and sounds muffled or completely quenched. While the heavily loaded Ford made this grade, the sharp turn into the narrow street, and the succeeding 100 feet to the tracks, the express train coming from the same direction had ample time to emerge from the cut, round the curve and reach the crossing without attracting the attention of the driver.

There is no automatic light at that crossing, operated by an approaching train, as the editorial writer apparently assumed. The only light is a red lantern to warn a stranger of the existence of a crossing. The crossing bell was doubtless ringing as always on the approach of a train. Under favorable conditions this bell can be heard for considerable distances. At other times it is necessary to drive close and stop the motor to be certain whether or not it is sounding. On the fatal night a strong wind was blowing; the Ford is not a quiet car and the wind whistling through crevices of closed curtains, the conversation of passengers, with the noise of a laboring motor made the bell inaudible.

The mechanic at the garage adjacent to the crossing, who dismantled the wrecked car, told the writer that the hand brake was found drawn up hard—a mute testimony of the frantic effort in that last half second of life, after the train appeared at the corner of the Atlantic and Pacific store, to save lives in his keeping. It may well be that this last effort of a habitually careful man was his undoing. A more daring

Patronage of the Arts

By ROBERT QUILEN

ANY salesman will tell you that an automobile show sells few cars. Some people buy because they came for that purpose. Others buy because a good salesman makes them want a particular car. But thousands come with the vague intention of buying; begin by desiring every car they see; in imagination possess car after car; and walk out at last with a tired, fed-up feeling and little desire for any car. They are like a child possessed of many dolls and unable to appreciate any of them. They have lost the desire to possess because it was satisfied by imaginary possession.

All of man's emotions and appetites are in similar fashion fed and satisfied to some extent by the arts. Pretense soothes him and takes away his yearning for the reality.

Consider your own case. The restrictions imposed by civilization irritate you; you feel that you are held in check by authority, and the stifled emotions within you cry for an outlet. Then you visit the theater, where emotions are not stifled; you are, for a time, the hero or the villain; in him you do the things you have wished to do; and when you leave the theater, your soul is washed clean of emotions and you are relaxed and at peace.

A story book serves the same purpose; music performs the same miracle; even sculpture may do it if your sensibilities are fine. The work of the artist absorbs your emotions; the artist is your safety valve—your vicarious sacrifice to the gods of hate and love and fear and jealousy and rage.

This ability to be satisfied with a vicarious sacrifice explains other things than patronage of the arts. It explains gossip, for example. The typical gossip is one filled with unlovely desires that are held in leash by conscience or fear of public opinion. Her soul delights in scandal because the wickedness of others gives her in some measure the thrill she would find in wickedness of her own if she but dared. The love of gossip is but a stifled love of cussedness.

What gossip does for the vulgar, the arts do for the civilized. It is not by accident that the arts develop only with the growth of civilizations and its restrictions—Necessity is the mother of art, as well as invention. Only in art can man find an outlet for the emotions frowned upon by civilization.

Evolution? What can we get out of China? When shall we get out of China? How can we get out of China?

If the child must have his own way, regardless of the cost to everybody else, think what a reformer he will make.

Correct this sentence: "He doubts everything," said the critic, "but he doesn't feel superior to those who believe."

driver might—who knows—have stepped on it and cleared.

The lesson of this calamity is to the reckless and careful alike, that in some places, and this crossing is one, no driver is safe until he has taken extraordinary care to verify his assumption that the way is clear. This was not a case of recklessness in the usual sense, but only one of those instances, difficult to explain, when judgment goes wrong—and that may happen to any of us.

For the Younger Generation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In view of the unsettled social and economic conditions existing in our country today, the reason for which is purely a matter of opinion, the thought has occurred to me that if a more concerted or united effort were directed toward the abolishment of useless and unreasonable laws, and with an interest in the welfare of children and the younger generation that is not perfunctory, but with the realization that ultimately they will become our representative citizens, it would materially aid to create a condition in our social and economic life that later would prove advantageous in commanding the respect our nation richly deserves in the world of affairs. The interest in the younger generation should not be confined to generalities, but must include home training, attractive school studies, with moderate home lessons, rather than of a nature to prevent the enjoyment of reasonable means of recreation, conducive to health, encouraging athletics, health exercises and frequent health examinations, with instruction to encourage good reading, clean entertainments and social affairs, under proper supervision, or, at least, of a character to permit students an advantage morally and spiritually.

I realize the above is a matter of interest to many individuals and organizations at present, but it is of a perfunctory nature rather than intensively personal.
WILLIAM H. BASTION.

Defaming Dead Heroes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you permit me to express my hearty approval of what your correspondent, "M. I. L.," says in regard to the present tendency among writers to besmirch the dead? Mudslinging at the living comes only from impure minds. How much lower is the mind that would besmirch the dead? A. L. STEWART.

PRESS COMMENT.

Championships.
New York Evening Post: A Canadian and a Yankee have swum the Catalina channel. Now for the first Norwegian, the first Tibetan and the first Czechoslovakian to do it.

Better Than Nero.
Brooklyn Eagle: With nobody testifying against them, the verbal critics of Mussolini are convicted and sentenced to long terms in prison. However, Rome is partly modernized. Verbal critics of Nero would not have escaped crucifixion.

This Is News.
Philadelphia Public Ledger: As a matter of civic pride a Newburgh (N. Y.) woman has refused damages from the city for injuries received by her when she slipped and fell on an icy sidewalk, and the city is taking steps to make her take enough to pay the doctor's bill. And that, the doggone dog-biters are notified, is news.

The World Has Moved.
Boston Transcript: Philadelphia is still asking why the sesquicentennial failed. Philadelphia may again be reminded that the world has moved since the centennial and the Columbian exhibitions stirred the American fancy to a degree that is now attained only when a queen from Roumania tours the country.

Love Thine Enemies.
Trenton State Gazette: Apple pie, doughnuts and lollipops are listed by Mildred Munson, health expert, as among the worst enemies of school-boys and schoolgirls. But the boys and girls, we firmly believe, will not be distracted from the path of righteousness and will conscientiously adhere to the Scriptural injunction and love their enemies.

The Craziest Statute.
Topeka Daily Capital: The only good thing that can be said for the new cigarette law is that it is better than the anti-cigarette law. Gov. Paulsen signed it for this reason, but under protest against some of its provisions. The new cigarette law is a step forward and can be improved two years from now. In its present shape it is probably the craziest statute in the universe, but it took that kind of a bill to win over the "rabbits."

Political Play.
Philadelphia Public Ledger: If the Senate had voted that the Treasury surplus should be used for tax reduction, it would not have brought tax reduction any nearer. Legislation on this subject must, of course, originate in the House of Representatives; and the House has decisively indicated its opposition. A favorable vote by the Senate would have been an empty gesture. What the Democrats were trying to do by means of the Harrison resolution was to put the Republican senators "in a hole." They wanted to smoke out Republican opposition to the proposal of President Coolidge last November that the surplus be made the basis for a tax cut. This much they succeeded in doing. The Republicans lined up solidly on one side, the Democrats almost as solidly on the other. Both recognized the vote as a mere political play. Some Republican senators were a bit worried about the situation. But the country will not take this sort of thing seriously.

GUESTS PANIC-STRICKEN AS HOTEL ROOM BLAZES

2,000 Persons Watch Two-Alarm Benedict Fire; Marine Lodger Disappears.

CIGARETTE IS HELD CAUSE

A two-alarm fire yesterday afternoon in a room on the fifth floor of the Benedict hotel, Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, threw a dozen occupants into panic and drove them to the street clad in nondescript garments, tied up traffic nearly half an hour and caused damage of approximately $1,000.

The fire started in room 24 on the fifth floor soon after 3 o'clock. The room was occupied by a marine, J. J. Dunn, of Quantico, Va., who disappeared after the fire. It is believed that a cigarette dropped on the carpet was the cause of the blaze.

Most of the occupants of the hotel were absent, but twelve persons were in their rooms. These fled to the street, several scantily clad. One man ran down the stairway carrying his shoes. All said they did not hear the hotel fire going, but were apprised of the fire by the commotion in the street.

Joseph McLaughlin, desk clerk of the hotel, was told of the fire by one of the roomers, who telephoned that the fifth floor was in flames. McLaughlin ran across the street and turned in the alarm.

Firemen found the room a seething mass of flames when they arrived. A second alarm was sounded and the fire soon was under control. The fireproof construction of the building prevented the spread to any of the other rooms, Fire Marshal Seib said.

A crowd of nearly 2,000 persons watched the fire and street cars were tied up on Pennsylvania avenue and automobile traffic was stopped on Sixth street. Firemen gathered all of the furniture in the room and tossed it to the street, five stories below.

rites for LILLIAN M. LEWIS

Was Chief Clerk of Women's Bureau, Labor Department, Since 1918.

Funeral services for Miss Lillian M. Lewis, 53 years old, chief clerk of the women's bureau of the labor department, who died Monday at her residence, 1916 Seventeenth street northwest, were held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the funeral parlors of the W. R. Speare Co., 1623 Connecticut avenue northwest. The Rev. George Dudley, pastor of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal church, conducted the services, which were attended by a large number of employees of the bureau.

Born in New York State, Miss Lewis came to Washington while a child and had resided here ever since. She served the government for 28 years. She was made chief clerk of the women's bureau in 1918.

Mrs. Cross conducted the demonstration and gave the lecture of the day, entitled "The Modern Home." Many of the women brought pencils and pads on which they copied the recipes given by Mrs. Cross, her advice on some particular point, or her instructions relative to some particular problem.

Samples of the food prepared were distributed among a large number of women who came to the platform at the close of the lecture and demonstration. These included cakes, fancy desserts and a great variety of preparations.

Prizes also were distributed, including six market baskets of kinds of food which Mrs. Cross had used in the demonstration, two ice cream molds, one large bouquet of choice flowers and a number of other articles, including whole cakes prepared by Mrs. Cross, or some other preparation of hers.

In addition, green cards were distributed on which those receiving them wrote their preference of a washing machine or electric iron, or both. These were collected by the ushers and four were selected, the holders receiving $25 credit to apply on one or either of these articles in case they desired to purchase. This $100 was awarded in merchandise credits.

More than $1,000 will be awarded in these credits before the close of the course. Today pink cards will be distributed on which the recipients will likewise write their names and addresses. The cards will be collected and those selected will receive in case they desire to purchase, $25 credit to apply on an electric refrigerator. A number of three credits will be given today, as well as credits for the purchase of the washing machine or electric iron, and on the last day several hundred dollars will be awarded in credits applying toward the purchase of all these articles.

On Friday also an all-enamel gas range and a new vacuum cleaner will be awarded to two persons who have attended at least twice during the four days. Those who attend the four days, therefore, will receive four chances for the grand prizes. In addition, a gas range will be sold to the highest bidder, and bids were received yesterday, and will be received, on white cards distributed among the audience.

Today the same number of market baskets will be given as prizes, and there will be a number of other prizes of various kinds.

Today booklets with pencils attached will be distributed among the audience, in which those present will be requested to write their names and addresses. The booklets will be collected and those giving their names and addresses will receive recipes and other cooking instructions by mail.

Mrs. Cross will speak this afternoon on "Health Control Through Proper Dieting." Tomorrow her subject will be "The Family Budget," and on Friday "Menu Planning." The lectures will begin at 2 o'clock, the doors opening at 1 o'clock, and will continue until about 4 o'clock.

The intense interest in the school is manifested by the fact that at noon yesterday a large number of women had arrived for the opening of the doors, and at 1 o'clock hundreds had reached the auditorium.

At 1:30 o'clock a musical program was given, continuing until 2 o'clock, after which Mrs. Cross was introduced by Miss Nancy Carey, head of The Post's efficiency service and editor of the column entitled "The Housekeeper." Miss Carey told how her department had grown from a mere one-fourth column to the magnitude of the present cooking school in a year.

The great number of women who appeared yesterday was, in fact, the truest testimony to the growth of Miss Carey's department and her own popularity among Washington housewives. Some of the women declared they followed her column closely and acknowledged her help in making the dinner table more attractive.

Mrs. Cross invited questions from the audience and received many. One housewife wished to know how to save steps in a spacious kitchen. Another asked why raisins sank to the bottom of a cake. Still another asked whether a cake should be stirred or beaten, while one desired to know how to prevent a sponge cake from becoming tough.

To the first she replied that the saving of steps depended on the orderly arrangement of the kitchen, to the second the raisins obeyed the law of gravity owing to the lack of sufficient strength in the cake, to the third that it was better to beat and stir a cake because the beating inclosed air and the stirring broke up the air particles, insuring a fine-grained cake, and to the fourth that a sponge cake became tough if baked in a hot oven, or if too much flour were used. Other questions were asked of a more or less technical nature and temporary interest.

Those who attend the school today will be able to hear much better, since the amplifying loud speakers will be in operation, insuring an equality of sound throughout the auditorium.

Those who received prizes yesterday were Mrs. R. E. Snodgrass, 3706 Thirtieth street northwest, flowers; Miss Mina Powell, Government hotels, ice cream molds; Mrs. C. G. Boyle, 207 Wilcox avenue, bag; Mrs. E. C. Wells, 1614 Buchanan street northwest, bag; Mrs. Wilhelmina Olsen, 1547 Columbia road, ice cream molds; Mrs. S. S. Cohn, 3428 Clifton street, bag; Mrs. N. N. Nock, 1129 New Hampshire avenue, bag, and Mrs. A. F. Brooke, 2009 F street northwest, bag.

Force-Adams Meeting Indorses Dr. Ballou

Indorsement of the past administration and present program of Dr. Frank Ballou, superintendent of schools, was a feature of the meeting of the Force-Adams Parent-Teacher association, held yesterday afternoon in Force school. A resolution indorsing Dr. Ballou's methods followed discussion of the problem confronting administration officials in furnishing adequate class rooms and procuring a sufficient number of teachers.

Shifting of the school population to the outskirts of the city, thus emptying midcity schools to a large extent, without adequate facilities at points where they are most needed, was cited as a reason for the increase in the number of instructors. Following the business session of the organization, Prof. Farnum, of George Washington university, delivered a series of readings.

Bible Religion's Time Table, Says Preacher

Describing the Bible as the "time table" of Christian religion, the Rev. M. E. Lewis, formerly a railroad engineer and known as the "engineer-evangelist," last night conducted revival services in the B. F. Roberts Memorial church, Twelfth and N streets northwest. Mr. Lewis expressed his religious exhortations in the language of the railroad for which he worked eighteen years.

Revival services will be held in the church at 7:30 o'clock nightly with the exception of Saturday, the services concluding Sunday night, February 27, the Rev. H. W. Mitchell, pastor of the church, announced.

KREISLER AND VIOLIN ENTRANCE AUDIENCE

Master's Art Even Better Than Before, Following Return From Europe.

Before a packed house with the standing-room-only sign displayed in the box office, Fritz Kreisler, wizard of the violin, held entranced a wildly applauding audience at Poli's theater yesterday afternoon with one of the finest programs he has ever presented in Washington. The concert was under the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene.

So reluctant was the audience to part with Kreisler that at the close of his formal program it gave him ovation after ovation, to which he generously responded with encores from his own compositions, which have become classics of violin music. Finally he appeared to bow his acknowledgments, leaving his priceless violin behind him, and the audience took it for a signal that no more encores would be granted and dispersed.

Mr. Kreisler only recently returned from a European tour and his art is better than before. The magic of his fingers, the cunning of his bow arm, the sureness of his art, his amazing skill in the evolution of harmonies that are celestially sweet in quality were all manifest, and, as usual, his tone was a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

Voluntary Donations For Casualty Asked

Declaring that it will be impossible for workers in the Casualty hospital campaign for a $250,000 building fund to reach all residents of the District individually, campaign managers yesterday issued an appeal for voluntary contributions to be sent directly to Robert V. Fleming, treasurer. Pledges or cash contributions will be credited to whatever team the donor desires, it was said.

Contributions to date total $63,338.75, it was said. The campaign is to be closed Saturday night and an intensified effort will be made by workers to induce greater public response.

Lejeune Addresses Marine Reserve Body

Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, commandant of the United States marine corps, was the guest of the Marine Corps Officers Reserve association at the National Press club last night. He delivered an address in which he told what is being done to better the marine corps and increase its efficiency. The association voted to award a guidon to the reserve company which has the highest efficiency mark at Quantico next summer. Capt. Harvey L. Miller, president of the association, presided.

- Few grains pepper
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 2 eggs

To the potatoes add Crisco, salt, sugar, pepper, flour and parsley. Add beaten egg yolks and mix well. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Drop by tablespoons in deep hot Crisco (375 to 400 degrees F.) and fry 5 to 8 minutes or until a delicate brown. Drain on unglazed paper. Serve hot.

In frying with Crisco, notice that Crisco never smokes or makes an unpleasant odor at proper frying temperature. Notice, too, how beautifully Crisco fries—the foods are crisp, golden brown outside; tender, digestible and well-cooked inside. And remember that Crisco alone meets your every need of a shortening and cooking fat. It is just the thing for light, tender cakes, fluffy biscuits, flaky pie crust and dainty desserts.

To test your cooking fat—taste it.
Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

Crisco is the trade-mark for a superior shortening manufactured and guaranteed purely vegetable by The Procter & Gamble Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S. A.

THE CHICKERING AMPICO WILL ENTERTAIN YOU AT THE WASHINGTON POST COOKING SCHOOL—TODAY

EDWARD C. SAGER, Foreman Sounding Board Department. A Chickering Craftsman for forty-seven years.

WHAT is it that makes a fine piano? Not alone fine materials (though the best of precious woods and music metals must be used)—nor alone a scientific plan of construction (for the designs of all leading pianos have been copied minutely without the copies even remotely comparing in quality with the originals). A fine piano obtains and preserves its character by reason of the character of the craftsmen who build it and the tradition which binds them together. Chickering pianos have been made for one hundred and four years at historic benches by men in whom live the ideals of Jonas Chickering, America's first master builder. . . . All fine pianos of today without exception are modeled after the Chickering.

FORD TO TEST THEORY FARMER WASTES TIME

Will Open an Experimental Farm of Several Thousand Acres at Dearborn.

TO SYSTEMATIZE WORK

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—A theory of Henry Ford that the agriculturist wastes much time and that the production of staple farm crops can be accomplished in from 15 to 20 days through the application of efficiency methods, will be tested on several thousand acres of land which the automobile manufacturer recently purchased, Theodore H. Price said in an article which will appear tomorrow in Commerce and Finance.

Ford's estimate, according to the article, would allow two days for ploughing and harrowing, one day for planting, five days for cultivating during the period of growth, two days for harvesting and threshing, and the remainder of the time for fending, distributing fertilizer and other work.

Ford is quoted as saying that he has not changed his belief of eleven years ago regarding the industrialization of agriculture, and that he was confirmed in his opinion that the work to which a farmer now gives a year could easily be done in twenty days or less.

The article said that it was pointed out to Ford that his plan presupposes the use of much machinery and much labor that might not be obtainable if the period of employment were not more than twenty days, and that Ford's reply was that those who were willing to pay good wages could easily organize so that continuous employment for the labor would be provided.

The experimental farm is located at Dearborn, Mich., near the headquarters plant of the Ford Motor Co. and will be opened to public inspection.

Harry Leon Wilson Sued for Divorce

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—A suit for divorce was filed today against Harry Leon Wilson, noted novelist and short-story writer, by Helen Cook Wilson, charging desertion and failure to provide.

In effecting a proper settlement when the couple separated a short time ago, Mrs. Wilson charged that her husband concealed assets. Her suit charges that Wilson has Monterey county estate which alone is worth $100,000, and that her husband has an income of $100,000 a year. The divorce suit asks one half of the community property, $500 a month temporary alimony and the appointment of a receiver for the fortune.

Post's Free Cooking School Offers Vital Suggestions

Session Also Proves Value of Housewives Assembling on Single Interest—Meat for Evening Meal

By NANCY CAREY.

The first of the cooking school classes that are being conducted in conjunction with the home efficiency service of The Post has taken place with a great measure of success. The auditorium, at which place these classes are being held, was packed to capacity, as far as seeing and hearing was concerned, and much that is of interest to home makers was taken up by the lecturer in the course of the afternoon.

Mrs. Lilla Pauline Cross, who has come to Washington to give to its home makers instruction of an invaluable sort on subjects near and dear to the hearts of women, gave the women gathered together in the auditorium for the first cooking school class a decidedly helpful talk on ways and means to success in conducting the modern home.

As the Post housekeeper, feel that getting together in this manner is of great importance to home makers, for in addition to the help that is derived from the lecture much stimulation is gained from the very act of assembling in a single place with a single interest.

The big men who do big things in a big way are constantly gathering together to discuss and plan for the future of their profession, and we, as women, should be loath to admit that our work as home makers is less of a profession than the numerous works of men.

In gathering together yesterday we derived benefit from the talk of Mrs. Cross and from our association with each other. We recognized that our occupation, so very white while from the point of view of health and happiness, was of profound importance to the individual home maker—and that women from all points of the compass surrounding Washington were willing to make the effort to meet in this manner for the advancement of the business of home making.

Mrs. Cross discussed at length the problem of careful choice in the matter of materials. And she discussed as well the problem of construction as regards materials in baking. It was some of the revelation, I fancy, to see this lecturer "dump"—for no other word is adequate—all of the materials for a cake into a bowl and proceed to beat them with a steady hand into the successful cake that a few moments later was turned out of the bowl into a baking pan and in a few minutes more removed from the oven onto the table.

And the number of women who filed, one at a time, onto the platform to investigate the textures of the goodies constructed on the platform during the demonstration, also was something of a revelation, and considerable of a satisfaction.

For some weeks have expected some member of the party to take the first offensive step.

They regard the flat statements of Dr. Butler in this light and expect that now that the first move has been made there will be others that may not be quite as open but just as obvious in their intent.

Has Not Made Warm Friends.

The present session of Congress has developed in no uncertain terms that the majority of the President's friends in Congress are governed by expediency when they speak in praise of the administration. The chief executive in his relations with Congress has not made warm personal friends, and when members of Congress engage in private conversation the absence of close ties between the Capitol and the White House soon develops.

This policy of public reticence and private frankness soon may be broken. It will not be as long as the party leaders feel the nomination is still at the disposal of the present occupant of the executive mansion, but the inauguration of a serious fight against him will change the situation materially.

When that day comes there certainly will be payment in full made by those who looked to the White House for political aid during the Coolidge administration, and were not given the slightest encouragement by their party chief, either through a spoken or written word.

Considerable significance was attached yesterday to the speech of Dr. Butler, because he recently had been guest at the White House. Dr. Butler passed a week-end as the guest of the Coolidges in January, following the meeting of the Society of American Editors.

Importance Seen in Dry Fight.

Equal significance was attached last night in the action of Dr. Butler in absenting himself from the dinner which Dr. Hubert C. Work, Secretary of the Interior, gave for President and Mrs. Coolidge. Following his New York speech and its political rumblings Dr. Butler sent his regrets.

The battle which Senator Borah very evidently intends to wage over the prohibition issue within the Republican party, if Dr. Butler is willing, may prove to be as important an outgrowth of the New Yorker's remarks, from a party standpoint, as his prediction as to the intentions of the President.

Republican strategy for months has been to let the Democratic party divide on the wet and dry question while maintaining an air of detachment. The hope has been that the rival factions of the present minority would kill each other off, but if Senator Borah and Dr. Butler go to the people as the former proposes, to determine prohibition sentiment prior to the convention, the Republicans may have trouble in steering the middle ground on which their course is now fixed.

Senator Borah, in the letter he sent to Dr. Butler, suggests a joint campaign, prior to the selection of delegates, in which the issue might be framed before the electorate. The Idaho senator does not believe the question should be settled by the personal attitude of the candidate but through the voters in their choice of men to represent them in the convention.

Such a joint debate, the most far-reaching since Lincoln and Douglas took the stump on the slavery issue, certainly would remove any possibility that the Republicans could put in a prohibition plank on which factions could quarrel so easily, and might, some observers believe, do much to bring about the new division of liberals and conservatives which some politicians have predicted for the future.

The text of Senator Borah's letter to Dr. Butler follows: "I have just read your address of last evening in which you are quoted as saying: 'In 1928 no candidate for President can escape making known with definiteness and precision his attitude upon prohibition. Unless he is against it, he can not, in my judgment, be elected on any ticket.'

"With your view that this issue is here and should be candidly met, it seems to me all must readily agree. I do not think it can be met nor should we undertake to meet it by leaving it to the declaration or the supposed personal attitude of the candidate. The Republican party, as a party, should unmistakably declare itself upon this question. The voters who make up the party should have an opportunity to speak. In order to achieve this, the issue should be presented in the respective States and districts prior to the election of delegates so that the delegates may be elected in accordance with the popular view. The time seems short enough between now and the meeting of the convention to bring this about."

"I assume from your address that you and your friends are in favor of the United States Army band."

Tracing the development of The Post housekeeper's service from its beginning to its present development where 4,000 women were instructed in one gigantic session yesterday, Miss Carey said, "The discovery of this community are particularly enthusiastic home makers and that new ideas and discoveries are not to them things to be lightly passed by. And because of this interest—which has, by the way, been the warmth and light that has nourished this pioneering service of ours and developed it to its present proportions—because of this interest, I repeat, we have brought to Washington in connection with the home efficiency department of The Washington Post, a cooking school for the pleasure and instruction of the women of this city and its environs."

"One of the classes already has taken place, but The Washington Post and I, as the director of the home efficiency service, wish to invite all women interested in homemaking to attend the classes that they may more easily, more intelligently and more efficiently dispose of the problems that beset the housewife's day."

Miss Carey was followed by B. E. Carmichael, who spoke on the value of the horse and its place in modern agriculture and by Dr. Paul R. Heyl, physician at the bureau of standards, who spoke on "What We May Learn From a Soap Bubble." Musical acts by the City Club Syncopators, Phil Hayden and "The" Colored popular entertainers, the Blue and Gray Troubadours, a dance program by Dick Liebert and his Lido orchestra and a concert by the United States Army band.

Leslie M. Shaw Opposes
Butler on Third Term

New York, Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—Leslie M. Shaw, who was Secretary of the Treasury under President Roosevelt, today took exception to the assertion of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, that a President has served two terms who has twice taken the oath of office.

Dr. Butler made his assertion in an address in which he expressed the belief that President Coolidge will not be a candidate in the 1928 campaign. In an open letter to Dr. Butler, Mr. Shaw expressed the opinion that the death of a President does not advance a Vice President to the Presidency, but merely increases his duties. If Dr. Butler's statement is logical, Mr. Shaw said, then any President can get his third term by simply repeating his oath three times.

The oath of office taken by Coolidge after the death of President Harding "was both innocent and unnecessary," in the opinion of Mr. Shaw. He added it was fortunate Mr. Coolidge did not resign as Vice President, in taking the oath as President, because such action would have made him a private citizen and Charles Evans Hughes would have become "acting President."

"The framers of the Constitution made clear provision that no man shall be President of the United States of America unless and until he is elected to that particular office in the manner provided in the Constitution," Mr. Shaw wrote. "The duties of that office, under certain circumstances, but not the office, may fall upon the Vice President."

Frigidaire Electric Refrigeration is a real household economy. It usually costs less to operate than was formerly spent for ice—and because it preserves all foods perfectly it saves by preventing spoilage and waste.

Frigidaire is care-free. It starts and stops automatically—no buttons to push, no levers to turn, no adjustments to make. It operates day or night, summer and winter alike.

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have best cough medicine
you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this famous home-made cough syrup. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. It tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, which has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FITZGERALD MEASURE TO BE GIVEN HEARING

Citizens' Council Takes Cognizance of Protests Following Bill's Approval.

The citizens advisory council last night took cognizance of many protests that have been made against its recent action in recommending the Fitzgerald workmen's compensation bill and voted to hold a public hearing on that and allied bills in the District building next Tuesday evening.

Chairman J. G. Yaden said he had received several communications criticizing the council for having acted on the matter without hearing from opponents of the legislation. One of these came from Brig. Gen. Anton Stephan, president of the Merchants & Manufacturers association.

Proponents of the Fitzgerald, Underhill and Bruce bills and opponents of all of them will be invited to appear and divide the time equally between the different views represented. W. I. Swanton and George T. Beason were appointed a committee to investigate the contribution, if any, of the Federal government in compensation for the water it uses delivered by the District water system and of the quantity consumed.

Talk With Wood Awaited by Coolidge

President Coolidge prefers if possible to await the return of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, governor general of the Philippines, from that country so he may consult with him before taking any action on the resolution of the Philippine legislature calling for a plebiscite on the question of independence.

In view of the fact, however, that Gen. Wood is recuperating from a recent operation it is possible his return may be delayed to such an extent that the President will have to act without directly conferring with Gen. Wood.

Long Wait Forecast On Auto-Permit Plea

If counsel for Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge takes full advantage of the time allowed to get before the Court of Appeals the appeal from the decision of Justice Smith of the District Supreme court declaring that automobile operators' permits may not be revoked by traffic authorities prior to a court conviction, it will be six months before the higher court can pass on the question.

By that time the appellate court will be in summer recess and decision will be postponed until fall. Under the rules of procedure the District has 20 days from last Saturday, the day Justice Smith gave his decision, to appeal. Ninety more days are allowed to get the record to the Court of Appeals, 30 days more in which to put up money for printing the record, and 30 days more in which to file a brief. Then the other side has 20 days in which to file a reply.

Champion Father's Wife Calls 19 Enough

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—Mrs. Leander C. Gentle, who two days ago presented her husband with his twenty-ninth child and who has borne 19 of the 29, expressed an opinion from the maternity ward of a hospital here today that 19 was enough.

"I love every one of them," Mrs. Gentle said, "but I don't feel at present that I desire any more."

Mrs. Gentle's husband was presented to President Coolidge recently as a champion father.

British Embassy Plans Tentatively Approved

Plans for the new British embassy in Massachusetts avenue near Observatory circle, which still are tentative, according to the embassy, were approved yesterday by the Commission of Fine Arts.

Pending award of a contract, embassy officials declined to release detailed information regarding the building save that it would be a large and imposing structure of Georgian type of architecture, fronting on the avenue.

POLICE TAKE BIRGER IN ILLINOIS GANG WAR

Two Sheriffs Join to Arrest Leader on Charge of Aiding Murder.

Benton, Ill., Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—Charles Birger, southern Illinois gang leader, was arrested at his home in Harrisburg, Ill., today on a warrant charging him with complicity in the murder of "Big Joe" Adams, mayor of West City, Ill., December 12, 1926. Sheriff James Pritchard, of Franklin county, armed with the warrant issued two months ago, and assisted by Sheriff Lige Turner, of Saline county, arrested the gang leader without encountering resistance.

Sheriff Turner, stepping up the door of the Birger home, said: "Birger, I have a warrant here for your arrest, and I've come to take you."

"Well, don't get excited," Birger is reported to have said. "Come on into the house."

Birger at first appeared belligerent, but soon calmed down. Conflicting reports were here to the effect that Birger was placed in the Saline county jail, although Sheriff Turner refused to tell where the gang leader was taken.

Gov. Small Declines To Reprive Slayers

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—No executive action will delay the execution of the six convicts sentenced to die Friday for the murder of Deputy Warden Peter Klein, Gov. Small announced tonight.

Chicago, Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—Attorney Francis Loughran, of Joliet, who represented one of the three Mexicans among the six convicts sentenced to die, declared that Circuit Court Judge Arthur De Selin, of Will county, today had indicated to him that he would grant a stay of execution for all six men on a showing that funds had been raised to make possible payment for a transcript to be presented before the supreme court on a writ of error. Mr. Loughran said he would make such a showing tomorrow morning.

Danish King Asks Cut in Appanage

Copenhagen, Denmark, Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—In an attempt to reduce the top heavy public budgets, the new government under Premier Madsen Mygdal contemplates drastic reductions in the number of salaries of government officials and employees. Some of those affected threaten retaliation in the form of law suits for breach of contract.

The newspaper Ekstrabladet says the king is setting a good example in economy by asking a reduction of ten per cent in the royal appanage (maintenance allowance) which is 1,000,000 kroner yearly or about $268,500. The crown prince also is said to be insisting upon reduction of his appanage which is 48,000 kroner.

Albion and Associates Deny Samossoud Debt

Edouard Albion, opera promoter, and the National Opera association, who were sued jointly January 20 by Jacques Samossoud, 1639 Hobart street northwest, for an accounting relative to opera funds, especially in connection with production of the operas "Il Pagliaccio" and "La Traviata," denied yesterday in their answers filed in equity court through Attorneys Colladay, Clifford, Pettus & McGarragh, that there is any money due Samossoud.

The National Opera association, on the contrary, alleges in a cross bill that there is due it from Samossoud the sum of $1,102.77 by "reason of the excess paid to Samossoud on behalf of the association."

Both Albion and the association deny Samossoud's charge that $2,500 in free tickets were issued to the guarantors of the operas mentioned.

Peggy Joyce Basis Of Comstock Suit

Miami, Fla., Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—Mrs. Evelyn Cady Comstock, of Chicago, testified before a master in chancery here today in her suit to annul the divorce granted her husband, Stanley E. Comstock, here in 1925 on grounds that it was obtained by fraud and without her knowledge. She also seeks a divorce in an amended bill charging cruelty.

The first she knew of the divorce, she said, was when Comstock, Detroit and Miami Beach real estate operator, announced his engagement to Peggy Hopkins Joyce last summer. She saw her husband in New York soon afterward, she said, and quarreled with him when she learned that Comstock had kept an appointment with Miss Joyce after joking with her about the engagement.

Five Seriously Hurt In Autos' Collision

Petersburg, Va., Feb. 8 (By A. P.).—Five persons were seriously injured in a collision between two automobiles on the Richmond-Petersburg turnpike at Colonial Heights this afternoon. They were brought to a hospital here.

Mrs. J. T. Sloan and Mrs. A. L. Glasgow, of Richmond, were the most seriously hurt. The others are G. H. Tatterson, G. F. Fullea and Meade Murk, of Norfolk. Mr. Glasgow was uninjured. His negro chauffeur suffered minor hurts.

FOR Sour Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1876.

Just sit down to the Rainbow-Ironer and guide the clothes

IRONING day is a pleasure now. You sit before your Rainbow in comfort. The Rainbow does all the work. You get up refreshed, rested. No back-aches, no exhaustion. The hardest work in housekeeping is now made so easy that it is really no task at all.

Does better ironing. A finger-tip controls it.

The Rainbow irons anything—from filmiest silk to heavy bed-spreads—damask—shirts—dresses. No hand-iron can equal the finish it gives. You never had such lovely ironing as you get from a Rainbow.

You are paying for a Rainbow Ironer.
Why not have one?

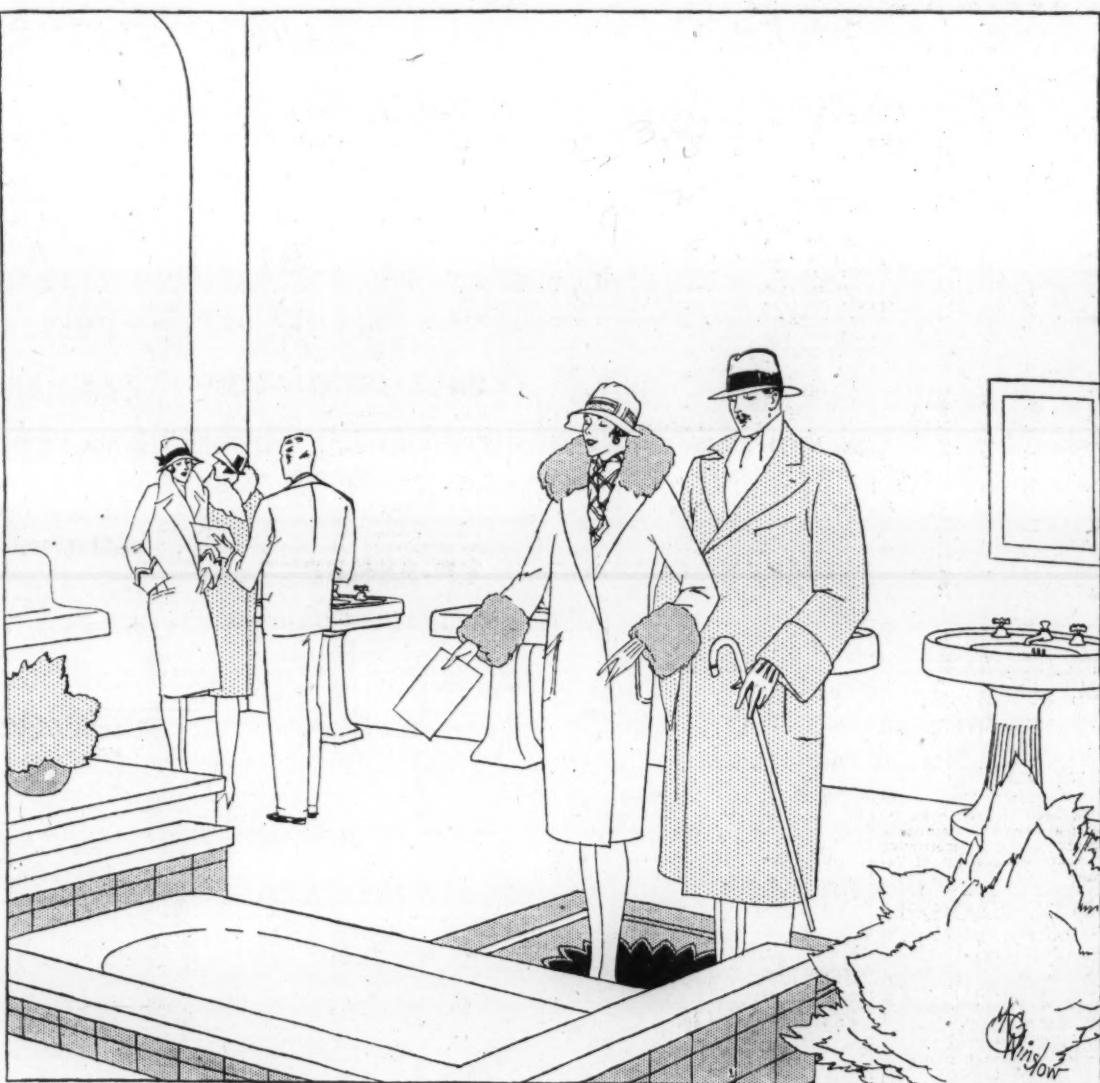

The Rainbow does the ironing in one-third the time that a hand-iron needs. So every time you pay your laundress $3 for ironing you are giving away $2 that the Rainbow would save. Yet at $2 a week you lose practically the entire cost of a Rainbow Ironer every 18 months. You'd be much better off to own a Rainbow with the money, since you pay it out now anyway.

Rainbow AUTOMATIC IRONER

If you do your own ironing you pay an even bigger price in health, in strength; you lay yourself subject to back-ache and other ills; you make yourself look old. Your husband comes home on ironing day to a tired, fading wife. The Rainbow stops all that. It keeps you fresh-looking, attractive, on the worst day of the week.

The famous Rainbow Finger-Tip bar controls the operations as easily as pressing a piano key; nothing could be simpler. The Rainbow uses less current per ironing than a hand-iron. Special thermometer warns long before clothes can scorch. Everything about a Rainbow is simple, easy, certain.

Free trial at home.
Only $2.50 a week if you keep it.

Those Lucky Pullens!

by MALCOLM DUART
(Copyright 1926 by EUGENE MACLEAN)

Names and situations in this story are fictitious.

THE STORY SO FAR.
Wrist watches, necklaces, scarves, a motor car, a beautiful furniture and other gifts have mysteriously come to the Pullens home in Washington, D. C., from a mysterious source. Julia Pullen, pretty and well-to-do, who with her boy friend, Sam Carlie, and is unhappy, but is sought by a young lawyer named Fred. Mrs. Pullen is the innocent victim of stories circulated by Mrs. Hamilton, a gossip, who the last chapter ends, Pullen tells his wife and daughter that Parks has offered to sell Pullen the mortgage on Mrs. Hamilton's house.

NOW ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

MRS. PULLEN rolled out of bed and, patting her head, turned on the light.

"What did you light the lamp for?" her husband complained, as she crawled back under the covers.

"I want to look at you while we talk," she told him. "It's awfully hard to talk in the dark. Fred, why should you want to do any favors for Mrs. Hamilton?"

"I don't," he said, surprised. "But why should it be a favor to buy the mortgage on her house?"

"It's lending money to her, isn't it?" his wife asked. "And that's a favor, goodness knows."

Pullen laughed. "People usually do take it as a favor when you lend 'em money on a mortgage," he admitted.

"But after you've got the mortgage they don't like you. It's this way, Elsie."

This woman has done you a lot of harm. We don't want to go to court about it, but there might be an advantage in holding the mortgage on her place. She owes it herself, you know. Her husband decided to let her. I guess she made him."

"His wife puzzled over the matter for a time. Is it like our mortgage?" she asked. "Could we take the house away from her if she can't pay?"

"Something like that," he said. "Then let's not do it. It's too mean," she decided.

"But—" he began.

"I know," she interrupted. "We'll do this—you get the mortgage, Fred, and if she can't pay I'll go to her and say, 'Mrs. Hamilton, I'm not as mean as you are. I could turn you out of house and home, but I'll not do it. You take your time to pay up—and stop talking about me to all the neighbors.' She turned a shining face to Pullen. 'Wouldn't that be the right thing to do, Fred?'"

Her husband chuckled.

"What's funny about it?" she demanded.

"Why," said he, "the mortgage wouldn't belong to you and me. It would belong to the real estate office. I'm only a trustee there, you know. I've got to turn the business back when the owner comes home. And you couldn't go to Mrs. Hamilton or anybody representing the office, Elsie."

"I don't see why not," she told him. "You just can't," said he. "That isn't the way business is done. What's more, I've got to consider whether the mortgage is a good investment for the business—I can't go spending money from the office for private reasons. I'll see about it. I've got to think it over."

"Fred," she asked, "how did Mr. Parks come to be mixed up in it?"

"He said the mortgage belongs to a client of his firm, who wants to sell it. Mr. Parks sent him out—he knew we deal in that kind of stuff, a little."

"Then maybe Julia knows something about it," said Pullen, climbing out of bed again, and hurried to her daughter's room.

"What's she up to now?" she asked, opening the door.

"What's a sleepless voice from within."

"Did you know that Mr. Parks sent Mr. Parks to sell Mrs. Hamilton's mortgage to your papa?" the mother inquired, all in a breath.

"Goodness," said the girl. "There was a stirring in the bed. 'You woke me up. Say that all over again, mamma.'"

"Why," said Julia, "I remember I was taking dictation from Mr. Parks today, and he sent me out when Mr. Parks came in. He said I was something I'd better not hear."

"There!" cried Mrs. Pullen, triumphantly. "I know it!"

She shut the door and sped back to Pullen's side, touching out the light before she returned to bed.

"Fred, it's as certain as anything," she told him, lowering her voice. "Mr. Parks is in love with Julia, and planned to marry her."

"What?" he asked, sitting up in bed.

"For Pete's sake!" he protested. "You're running on a side track again. Elsie, I suppose you've got to go on until it works out of your system, don't you say anything to Julia—she'll be leaving home, first thing you know."

"I wasn't doing anything," the older woman protested. "What was there to say 'don't' about?"

She subsided, however, and bade farewell to her husband and daughter without further reference to Mr. Murty.

"Be sure and order your dress suit," she instructed Pullen, as he brought out his car. "And I'll go down town today and buy my dress and Julia's."

Her purchases proved to require three days, instead of one. Twice she telephoned Julia to meet her, and twice she vetoed the girl's selection.

Ultimately, however, she declared herself satisfied, and on the evening of the third day the gowns were spread out the living-room couch when Pullen and his daughter came home.

"Goodness knows I've tramped this town over," she said, as they entered the house. "I've been to every store in town. I found these in the first place I went to. Aren't they pretty?"

"Why did you go to all the other places then?" her husband inquired, lifting an edge of the heavy brocade that his wife had selected for herself.

"You could have saved yourself a lot of walking."

"You'd be a nice one to shop for this family," his wife retorted. "A pretty lot of clothes we'd have if you bought them."

"Good legs," Mrs. Pullen showed signs of wear from her exertions.

"But if you saw these first place you went, and liked them, what was the use of looking any place else?" he persisted.

"A lot you know about buying," Mrs. Pullen returned. "Do you like your dress, Julia?"

The girl was holding the gown before her, studying the effect in the glass. "It's sweet," she said. "Will I look all right with such a low neck?"

"Shoulders are so thin," she said. "They're not thin," her mother said. "Just slender. Fred, did you get that dress suit?"

"Not yet," he said. "Haven't had time."

She dropped her hands in a gesture of despair. "Ask you leave us with these nice things, and we can't wear them! We're not going to sit in a box with all our jewelry and fine clothes and have you in that old gray suit, Fred Pullen."

"I might go in my bathrobe then," he proposed, cheerfully. "But I've had something else on my mind. I had Sam Carlie look up that Hamilton property."

"Julia started, and turned.

"What do you mean?" she asked. "I found out that we can buy those two lots alongside for about half what they're worth," the man went on. "If you want to build a new house, and knock the eye out of the women around here, I can swing it!"

"That's good," her mother said. "Money for the finest house on Capitol Hill, right next door to Mrs. Hamilton. How about it, Babe?"

"What does Sam say?" Julia asked, her eyes cast down.

"Sam? He doesn't say anything. Been going around in a daze for a month. Hasn't been worth ten cents this week." He paused and laughed.

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

Mr. Work, if addressed care of The Washington Post, will answer your auction bridge questions. Stamp, self-addressed envelope is necessary.

The pointer for today is: Be sure that you are familiar with the rights you will have if you become the dummy.

When the game of Bridge was first introduced, the player who put down the exposed hand was stripped of practically every privilege and became what his name implied—a dummy.

As the game has developed, the tendency of the lawmakers has been to enlarge the dummy's privileges provided he does not transgress the ethics of the game by intentionally looking at a card in the hand of a player.

One of the greatest nuisances of Bridge is the "rubbering dummy" who deliberately watches the play of one or both adversaries or, worse still, walks around the table with a piece of paper in his hand, ready to suggest a lead or play by touching or naming a dummy card. Law 30 (b) provides the penalties when dummy does not observe either of the above restrictions.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. W. A. EVANS

LEAD POISONING IN CHILDREN.

A CONSIDERABLE number of children suffer from lead poisoning.

There is a condition known as pica, which is characterized by a desire to eat dirt and other unnatural articles of diet.

Small children with pica have a way of eating the paint on furniture, cribs, chairs, toys and such.

Dr. McKhann reports several cases of lead poisoning due to eating paint from furniture and walls. So many Australian children have been poisoned from eating paint that the parliament of that country is said to have passed a law prohibiting lead painting of cribs, toys, and other objects to which children have access.

The symptoms of lead poisoning are not easily recognized. I remember when a physician

FRENCH BONDS RESUME LEADERSHIP IN TRADING

Government issues in Brisk Demand—Swiss and Belgian Loans Active.

DOMESTIC LIST SLUGGISH

New York, Feb. 8 (By the Associated Press).—After a week of steady declines under profit taking, French obligations returned to the center of interest in the bond market today. Aside from the foreign divisions, however, the market was quiet, with prices holding fairly steady. Particular demand focused on the French government issues, while some of the railway lines, including Paris-Lyon-Mediterranean and Nord, had good support. There was a broadening of interest, too, which took in securities hitherto not especially active. Among these were Swiss 5½ and Good Hope Steel 7s. Belgian government issues recorded fractional advances. Domestic rail mortgages were sluggish, despite active speculation in railroad stocks. A sharp rise of 7 points in Norfolk & Western convertible 6s and one of more than 3 points in Wabash 4s featured trading in this department. Chicago & Alton 5½ also were firm. National Railroad of Mexico 4½ displayed weakness, dropping off more than 2 points. Although industrials generally were steady, material losses were sustained by Anglo-Chilean Nitrate 7s and Granby & 7s, while Framingham 7½ and Warner Sugar refunding 7s advanced smartly. There was a fair demand for Federal government bonds, and prices were firm.

KEYET 75 TO 1 FOR PLACE IN 2nd

Keyet 75 to 1 For Place In 2nd

Loses to Florenda in Hard Drive Down Homestretch.

Marconi Wins Fifth Easily; Sixth to Battleground.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 8. (By A. P.)—The McLean Stable's colors continue to lead the list of winning owners here in two races today when Florenda won the second event and his good filly Florenda posed out a victory in the Melbourne handicap, which featured the program. Florenda was ridden by Ambrose, the veteran jockey, and she ran an excellent race. He got the filly away in front but took back and allowed the others to race themselves into defeat. He waited until the stretch was reached before making a real home run, rushing the filly up on the outside and, closing gamely, won by a head over Black Agate, with Candy Hog third, a length and a half back.

The veteran trainer, Dave Gideon, who races some of the best horses in the country twenty years ago, has his colors carried to victory in the first race when Garth, well played, scored in a drive over a big field of players.

It has been a long while since the famous colors have been down in front. Garth was ridden by McFarlane and the boy rode a perfect race. He got the gelding away flying and, making the best of it, landed his mount a winner by three quarters of a length over Glimore, who came from a long way back to gain the place by a head over Nahsion.

Maiden three-year-olds completed in the second race and the big crowd was treated to a real home run. Florenda, one of the choices, was first by a very small margin, with Keyet second and Condonna third. Florenda paid $5.70 to win and Keyet $15.40 for a 22 ticket a place. It was a good race for the long shot players. Florenda rushed into the lead after the first half mile and in a hard drive just lasted to win Keyet beat Condonna three lengths for the place.

Jimmy McGee's good filly, Keyet, started Katherine W. in the 2-year-old event and the filly rewarded by galloping to victory. He has won twelve races at the meeting. Keyet's race was the place, with Support, the favorite, third. The three filly races were run in 2:06 1/5. Clear Star and Katherine W. broke running, but the former had too much foot for Clear Star and drew away to win by a length and a half. Clear Star beat Support half a length for the place.

The Island Farm Stable's Marconi was winner of the mile and sixteenth race, the fifth number on the card. The chestnut son of Omar Khayyam had no difficulty in leading the field home. He was under stout restraint from the start and ran a perfect race, winning easily by a length and a half. Dark Phantom, which was the runner-up all the way, landed second by a length over Comet.

Battled, under Barnett's well judged ride, won the sixth race, a nine furlong handicap, old horses. Ted Crook, the French-bred horse, was second and Sandra third. Battled, rated along back of the place to the turn, where Barnett sent him to the front and, holding a slight advantage to the end, won by a half length. Foe Crook beat Sandra a like distance.

The suspension of jockey Paul F. Crook has been rescinded by the stewards.

GOOD GAINS SCATTERED OVER LONG STOCK LIST

Wheeling & Lake Erie Continues Fantastic Flight; Western Maryland Active.

INDUSTRIALS ARE HIGHER

Special to The Washington Post.
New York, Feb. 8.—Speculative enthusiasm dominated the stock market again today and impressive gains were scattered throughout the list as the close. Not many shares closed well below their highs for the day. A good many high records were established among the low priced carriers. Activity was intense from the opening and the total sales were over 2,400,000 shares. Money remained easy, the call rate for borrowing and standing at 1 percent throughout the day, with heavy sales made on the outside at 3 1/2 percent. The most important news, except that which came from the floor of the stock exchange, was the proposed shipment of 800,000 tons of another $3,000,000 in gold.

The fireworks on the stock exchange again were furnished by Wheeling & Lake Erie common stock, which continued its fantastic flight in spite of the announcement that should have served to dampen the stock. The Baltimore & Ohio, Nickel Plate and New York Central railroads as purchasers of more than half of the outstanding stock of the company. On a small volume of sales the price of the common stock leaped to 180, or 30 points above yesterday's close, and even with bids for 1,000 shares at this price, the stock was not brought out at once. Loans were made at 4 1/2 percent, a record premium stock exchange authorities had never before given. The following statement would come from the stock exchange abruptly at the closing of the day and a net gain of 5 points, 8,000 shares were traded in during the session.

In any event the shorts were lost millions in their efforts to cover their commitments. The preferred stock, which had been sold at 93, then dropped back to the common stock to 100. The stock was in a position to go up to 100, but it was not until the statement of the situation "would be" was made during the session.

The authorities also stated that the committee on business conduct "will continue to receive daily reports of the position of the market in Wheeling & Lake Erie. Thus no suspension of trading in the stock was to be expected, but that shorts were to be liquidated through the nose for an indefinite period. Any action of the exchange toward establishing a moratorium was undoubtedly a case of the stock exchange to get out of the market and turn over a block of 1,000 shares brought the top figure of 130.

Western Maryland was active, well above its recent high of 100, in a turnover of 160,000 shares for the year. It was a fractional net loss, Wabash stock, dropping to 54 1/2, fluctuating between 54 and 55, and finally closing at 55 1/2, a net gain of 3 1/2. New Haven common was another stock to touch 100, selling at 98 1/2, after considerable trading at 92 1/2, a gain of 3 1/2, net in a turnover of 122,000 shares.

Reading ranged over a 7 point swing, making a gain of 1 1/2 points and netting a gain of 6 1/2 points. Chicago and Western, which had dropped 4 1/2 in a turnover of 188,000 shares, the stock was up 1 1/2, and finally closed at 55 1/2, a net gain of 3 1/2. New York Central and Erie common were active, with the year gain of 3 1/2, net in a turnover of 122,000 shares.
